Consul, 14 others still hostage

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Five armed Japanese Red Army terrorists, still holding the U.S. consul and 14 other hostages, waited at the airport today to fly to another country.

Malaysian officials said no question had arisen over Libya granting permission for the terrorists to land there despite reports by Belgian radio in Brussels that Libya had turned down the request.

The officials said snags had developed over such things as whether the terrorists could carry weapons on the flight and the size of the crew. There were reports the terrorists wanted to limit the crew to six, and the crew wanted 11. The crew reportedly objected to weapons.

The Japan Air Lines DC8 which the terrorists and their captives boarded earlier today remained on the ground at the airport 14 miles from downtown Kuala Lumpur.

A government spokesman said two Malaysian officials would make the flight as hostages — Ramli Omar, parliamentary secretary to the communications ministry, and Osman Cassim, secretary-general of the home ministry.

It was not clear how the remaining 15 hostages would be removed from the plane or whether the terrorists would try to take them along.

The terrorists, masked and armed with automatic revolvers and hand grenades, left behind 28 of the hostages they had held in the U.S. Embassy since they invaded the building Monday.

One of the hostages said the terrorists said farewell to the 28 captives with, "Sayonara. We are very sorry we had to do this to you."

Nine others were freed earlier. Four persons had been wounded during the two days.

The raiders left the 12-story building that houses the Embassy in separate groups, each in control of some of the hostages who walked to a waiting bus with their hands clasped behind their heads.

Police motorcycles flanked the bus for the 14-mile drive to the airport, where heavy security was enforced.

Among the hostages taken to the airport were U.S. Consul Robert C. Stebbins and Swedish Charge d'Affaires Fredrik Bergenstrahle.

At the airport the terrorists joined five radicals freed from prisons in Japan and flown to Kuala Lumpur on Tuesday on board a Japan Air Lines DC8 in response to the raiders' demands. Four of the freed convicts were also members of the Red Army, a fanatical left-wing group, while the other was a member of a separate organization.

Officials in Tokyo said the Japanese government had contacted countries that might take the terrorists but without success.

Yogi Berra to be fired

NEW YORK (AP) — Yogi Berra, who two weeks ago defiantly refused to honor the wishes of his bosses and reinstate Cleon Jones, has been fired as manager of the New York Mets, the Associated Press learned today.

Baseball sources said the Mets would name former major league shortstop Roy McMillan to replace Berra on an interim basis.

Report Hoffa's foster son seen

DETROIT (AP) — The St. Louis Post Dispatch reported today that the foster son of missing ex-Teamster President Jimmy Hoffa — who served as Hoffa's bodyguard — was seen in the company of a close associate of Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons, Hoffa's rival for Teamster leadership, the day after Hoffa disappeared.

Hoffa's family has said it is looking for Charles "Chuckie" O'Brien, Hoffa's foster son, since Thursday — the day after Hoffa disappeared. And the FBI also has said they would like to question O'Brien.

A man who identified himself as O'Brien called The Detroit News Tuesday night and said: "I don't want to tell you where I'm at but I'm out of town. I'm safe and all right." A Detroit television station received a similar call. The station was told O'Brien was away on union business.

Hoffa's daughter, Mrs. Barbara Crancer, told The Associated Press today that the family still had not heard from O'Brien. "All we're asking is for him to tell the truth," she said.

Mrs. Crancer would not elaborate on what she meant by that, nor would she say if the family believes O'Brien is linked in some way to the disappearance of the former Teamster chief.

The Post-Dispatch quoted unnamed sources as saying that O'Brien had been seen getting into a car on the morning after Hoffa's disappearance. The sources said the car was driven by a man close to Fitzsimmons, but the sources refused to identify the man.

The sources also told the Post-Dispatch that O'Brien got into the car at about 7 a.m. Thursday near the Machus Red Fox restaurant. Hoffa was last seen outside the restaurant last Wednesday afternoon.

Friends said it was not unusual for O'Brien to be missing for days at a time, but that it was expected he would want to be with the Hoffa family during their ordeal.

Hoffa selected his onetime close friend Fitzsimmons to become Teamster president after Hoffa was forced to step down from the post, but they became bitter rivals when Hoffa tried to reassert his control of the union upon his release from jail.

Meanwhile, the FBI said it is studying some of Hoffa's private notes in an effort to retrace activities of the ex-Teamster boss just before he disappeared, a source said today.

FBI officals also said they would like to question O'Brien, who was raised by Hoffa from the age of 3, but there is no official search for the 41-yearold O'Brien, himself a Teamsters' official.

The family also said today that it had received no responses to its offer Tuesday of a $200,000 reward for information revealing the whereabouts of Hoffa.

Burn, baby, burn — heat and humidity

A soaring mercury with high humidity and light to moderate smog is expected to bring valley residents its most uncomfortable heat spell of the summer this week.

The weatherman says temperatures will top 100 degrees at several points throughout the valley, with a high of 98 degrees predicted for Pomona in the afternoons through Friday.

First stage smog episodes, with ozone readings reaching .30 parts per million parts of air, are predicted for most of the area today and Thursday.

And thundershowers expected in the Coachella Valley as well as over the mountains will continue to moisten the heat, with humidity readings predicted at 70 to 85 per cent. The National Weather Service says normal summer humidity readings in the valley range from 25 to 50 per cent.

The heat wave is expected to last at least until Saturday. In Pomona, Tuesday's high was 94 and the overnight low was 62.

$15-20,000 theft from home

Between $15,000 and $20,000 in money and jewelry were taken from an apartment at 2522 Hayes Drive, La Verne, Tuesday night, police reported.

William and Leatha Duff, managers of the Park View Apartments, told officers they were out for the evening, and when they had returned home later, they discovered someone had broken a front window to gain entry.

About $300 in cash and old coins were taken. Necklaces, bracelets and various types of rings valued at up to $20,000 were also taken.

The burglars also helped himself to 10 cartons of cigarettes, the Duffs reported.

They said the valuables were not insured.

Ontario, state negligent

A 27-year-old woman paralyzed from the chest down since a pepper tree limb fell on her car during a windstorm in Ontario in 1972 has been awarded $1.1 million in damages by a West Valley Superior Court jury.

The verdict returned by the seven-woman, five man jury, Tuesday afternoon was to cover the estimated medical expenses facing Mrs. Janice Winterswyk for the rest of her life.

The judgment was made against the city of Ontario and the state whom the jury found was negligent in keeping the large pepper trees along the Euclid Avenue parkway trimmed back when the city had knowledge that many of the trees were diseased.

Since a Dec. 26, 1972 windstorm blew through Ontario, Mrs. Winterswyk has been paralyzed from the chest down, and confined to a wheelchair.

Claremont attorney Herbert Hafif, on behalf of Mrs. Winterswyk, filed a lawsuit originally asking the city and the state for $3.1 million general damages and compensation for Mrs. Winterswyk's medical expenses, loss of earnings and legal fees.

In the accident Mrs. Winterswyk was driving north on Euclid Avenue in a windstorm when a huge 2,000 pound limb, approximately 30 feet long extending over the highway, suddenly broke, falling on to her car. The car was crushed and Mrs. Winterswyk suffered the major injuries that left her paralyzed.

Hafif brought forth Ralph Ames, director of biological sciences at Cal Poly, who testified that at the time of the storm nearly every pepper tree north of De Anza Park in Ontario on the parkway was diseased and rotted. He said the trees for the past 15 to 20 years have been afflicted with several types of fungus, including Oak Root Fungus, Sulphurus Fungus and Artists Fungus, which acted to rot out the heartwood of the trees and tree limbs, leaving the already brittle variety of trees with little support strength.

Ames pointed out that there were several obvious indicators that the trees were diseased, including a telltale orange color on the trunks and leaves that indicate fungus had attacked the roots 7 to 10 feet below the ground.

City employes brought to the stand in defense argued that there was no way to determine the extent of damage to the trees and that normal inspections of the trees would not reveal if a tree had completely rotted out.

Hafif argued that the city and state did have knowledge that the trees were afflicted, but did not take the proper steps to trim or remove the trees. Ames testified that the trees, because of their inherent brittleness, should never have been planted along the highly traveled parkway, as they were 25 to 50 years ago.

Bruggeman and Smith of San Bernardino, Attorneys for the City of Ontario, denied the trees represented a potential hazard, and said winds of the force that toppled the eucalyptus branch could not have been predicted.

Under cross-examination Hafif, city employes testitified that branches felled in another windstrom in the area last July 27 were all rotten and that at least 10 per cent of the area's trees had lost major branches.

FBI prefers Pat Hearst 'full of holes,' elder Scott says

NEW YORK (AP) — The father of sports figure Jack Scott says FBI' agents offered him up to $200,000 to help them find kidnaped Patricia Hearst and told him they'd prefer to get her back "full of bullet holes."

John Scott's report of the money offer was promptly denied in Washington, where FBI spokesman Tom Harrington said "at no time" had such an offer been made.

The elder Scott appeared with his son, the son's wife Micki McGee, and professional basketball player Bill Walton at a news conference Tuesday to announce that the younger Scotts would refuse to cooperate with a federal grand jury in Pennsylvania.

The jury has subpoenaed them for questioning about reports that Miss Hearst hid out in a farmhouse rented by the Scotts at South Canaan, Pa.

Miss Hearst, kidnaped from her Berkeley, Calif., home on Feb. 4, 1974, by the Symbionese Liberation Army, is wanted for allegedly joining the radical group in kidnaping and bank robbery.

The elder Scott said FBI agents had visited him and his wife at the Las Vegas apartment the Scotts manage, and several times and that "their constant presence . . . has seriously jeopardized our livelihood."

He identified the agents who made the offer of from $100,000 to $200,000 for cooperation in the hunt for Patty as David Rack and Bill Jansen.

He said it was Jansen who told them the agents "would prefer to bring her in full of bullet holes rather than alive, for it would make things easier all around."

"When we asked him, in utter astonishment, if he really meant that, he looked at the two of us and said, 'You heard me correctly'," the 66-year-old Scott added.

Miss McGee is scheduled to appear before the federal grand jury in Harrisburg, Pa., Thursday and young Scott on Sept. 4, but they said their attorneys would seek continuances to prepare motions for quashing the subpoenas.

Some refugees willing to give up kin for relocation

CAMP PENDLETON (AP) — Some Indochina refugee families are offering to split up and give away stepchildren or nephews if it will get them out of the tent city at this relocation centers any faster.

The moves have been interpreted by some officials as a sign of desperation among the refugees, who are waiting to be chosen by a dwindling number of sponsors.

"I never thought I would see it happen," said Nick Thorne, head of the civilian Interagency Task Force trying to find sponsors for the 16,631 Vietnamese and Cambodians living here. "It's a very interesting sign of the times, of the pressure they are under."

In at least three reported cases, families have tried to give away stepchildren or nephews "to anybody who wanted them," said a Marine Corps spokesman.

One family was seeking clearance for another family to adopt a nephews, believing it would hasten their departure.

Thorne said the families are being counseled to be patient and not do anything they might regret later on. He also noted that it is illegal for parents to abandon children.

However, some families have been allowed to split up, Thorne said. He told of one Vietnamese family of 28 which agreed to divide into four groups so it could settle in Washington state.

Federal officials are working to prevent the splitting of any more families, he said.

"The trauma of leaving Vietnam should not be compounded by the trauma of breaking up," he said.

In the Vietnamese culture, the extended family is cherished, with 20 or more persons — including aunts, uncles, grandparents and cousins — often living under the same roof.

Tunney now against health insurance plan

NORWALK (AP) — Saying the government cannot afford a national health insurance plan, Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif., has withdrawn his earlier support of the proposal.

Tunney, who has cosponsored bills that would have created a national health insurance program, said Tuesday he now opposes such a measure because it would "create once again a raging inflation."

The insurance program has been sponsored by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and supported by many liberals during recent sessions of Congress.

But Tunney, speaking at a luncheon of community leaders here, said it would be unwise to establish such a program until the nation's economic condition is more stable.

The senator said he would consider backing general health insurance in the future, but said he opposes it now because "it's going to cost a lot, an awful lot."

A program outlined in a bill Tunney cosponsored last year would have "a price tag of somewhere between $25 billion and $35 billion," Tunney said.

Citing a federal deficit of $70 billion, he said "if we throw another $30-billion-a-year or $35-billion-a-year deficit into that economy, I think it's just going to create once again a raging inflation."

That inflation, he said, "will do more to hurt senior citizens and people who are on fixed salaries...than they will benefit from national health insurance. And I think we have a responsibility at the present level to limit our expenditures so that we don't fire the fuels of inflation."

Jury indicts Gulf, exec

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted Gulf Oil Corp. and one of its top executives on charges of violating the Federal Energy Administration's crude oil entitlements program.

U.S. Atty. Blair Griffith said the five-count indictment returned Tuesday was the first criminal action against a major oil corporation for alleged willful failure to comply with the program.

The offense is a misdemeanor carrying a maximum penalty of a $5,000 fine on each count.

The individual named was Z.D. Bonner, president and chief executive officer of the Houston-based Gulf Oil Company-U.S. He is also an executive vice president of the parent corporation.

Gulf said in a statement issued after the indictment was handed down that the charges "are completely baseless."

The entitlements program is aimed at equalizing the cost of crude oil for all U.S. refiners by granting them access to an equal amount of price-controlled "old" crude oil.

Old crude refers to oil from well that were operative prior to 1972.

Refiners with access to less than the national average of 41 per cent of "old" crude are issued so-called entitlements to bring them up to the average.

Pomona hires six school executives

By PHYLLIS CANNON
PB Staff Writer

Six administrators were hired by the Pomona school board Tuesday night, the first screened by committees on which community representatives were permitted to serve.

The top position of the six, that of assistant superintendent of personnel services, was given to David R. Evans II on a 3-2 vote of the board.

The no votes were cast by Mary Montes, board vice president, and Gene Whitlock.

Evans has been acting in that position this summer replacing Lynn Rountree who July 1 moved from the personnel position to assistant superintendent of business services. Evans previously had been a personnel assistant under Rountree. He joined the district as a teacher in 1955. He was principal at Ganesha High School before being promoted to personnel assistant in 1972.

The screening committee, which contained four community people in addition to school teachers and administrators, interviewed 17 candidates for this position.

Evans will be paid $31,491 for 225 days work in 1975-76 plus a mileage allowance.

William R. Graham, assistant principal at Lexington Elementary School last year, was hired as principal of San Jose Elementary School succeeding Eleanor Allen who retired.

He was picked from among 10 candidates interviewed and was unanimously approved by the school board. He will be paid $24,945 for 215 working days, plus a $20 a month mileage allowance.

Wilhelmina S. Greene, dean of instruction at Pomona High School since 1971, was hired as supervisor of the basic Emergency School Aid Act (ESAA) Project. She will be paid $22,838 for 220 working days, plus a mileage allowance. She won unanimous board approval.

Last school year Mrs. Greene was on leave from Pomona High working on her Ph.D. in educational administration at UC Riverside. She expects to receive her degree next June.

Harold L. Carroll, acting director of the Desgregation Institute at USC, was hired as supervisor of the pilot ESAA project. He will be paid at the same level as Mrs. Greene and will receive a mileage allowance. Before coming to California, Carroll was a staff assistant at the University of Massachusettes and served as assistant principal, administrative intern and teacher in Cleveland, Ohio.

Edward V. Washington, an assistant principal in the Inglewood Unified School District, was hired as dean of students at Ganesha High School. He will be paid $21,520 for a 193-working-day position.

Before going to Inglewood, Washington was an assistant principal in Compton, a track coach in Compton and an elementary teacher in Wichita, Kan.

Warren L. Veasey, a teacher at Palomares Junior High School, was hired as assistant principal at that school. He will be paid $20,484 in that 200-working day position.

Carroll, Washington and Veasey unanimously were approved by the school board.

Portugal riots in 4th day; leftists wreck Red offices

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Rioters demanding the overthrow of Portugal's leftist military leaders wrecked Communist offices in the northern town of Santo Tirso early today, carrying their violent protest into a fourth straight day.

More trouble was anticipated in the nearby towns of Porto and Famalicao.

Communists in Porto scheduled a mass rally to denounce what they called "counter-revolutionary fascist banditry." In Famalicao, where the rioting began Saturday residents prepared to bury an 18-year-old youth killed along with a fellow demonstrator two days ago by government troops posted outside Communist headquarters.

Shouting "we are not with the Armed Forces Movement" — a reference to the leftist military command that engineered the Portuguese revolution 15 months ago — the Santo Tirso mob smashed the offices of the Soviet-line Communist party and two smaller satellite parties.

They also destroyed the law offices of a Communist sympathizer, yelling "Death to Otelo" — internal security chief Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho, one of three generals holding supreme power in Portugal.

Famalicao, stronghold of the centrist Popular Democrats, was quiet this morning after a night of anti-Communist attacks that sent government troops fleeing out of town on the heels of the Communists.

In Lisbon, Communist-backed Premier Vasco Goncalves was still struggling to form a new government to end a monthlong cabinet crisis and give the nation leadership.

There was no indication that he was anywhere near to success, although he appeared for the moment to have resisted pressure for his resignation from his junta colleagues, Carvalho and President Francisco da Costa Gomes.

The leftist press stepped up its campaign of support for the beleaguered premier. The daily O Seculo ran a front-page commentary accusing counter-revolutionaries of attempting to "create a climate of terror and hate ... to sabotage the Portuguese revolution" and called for "urgent, immediate and energetic action" against them.

Communist deputies walked out of Portugal's constituent assembly Tuesday after the Socialists attributed the moderate backlash to "the mistakes of the revolution" and "the irresponsible demagoguery" of Communists.

The Communists countered with a statement laying the unrest at the door of "fascist reactionaries" favoring a rightist dictatorship.

The walkout had no national repercussions. The constituent assembly, reflecting a 64 per cent vote for moderate parties in national elections last April, gives the parties a platform but no punch.

Real power rests with the three-general junta.

Decomposed body found by firemen

County firemen fighting a brush fire near the 210 Freeway in Glendora Tuesday evening discovered a man's badly decomposed body.

There was no connection between the five-acre brush fire at the north end of Sunflower Avenue near the freeway and the body, said fire officials, who responded to the fire at 6:20 p.m.

Sgt. Don Hurley of the Glendora Police Department said that the unidentified man had possibly been in the wash for two or three weeks.

Hurley said that the man appeared to be a suicide victim because a couple of pill vials were found near the body, but the Glendora police and the sheriff's homicide department were not ruling out homicide.

Hurley said that no identity had been made of the man.

The same engine company responded to a second brush fire which burned 1½ acres near the 210 Freeway and South Hills Park in Glendora. The cause of both fires is under investigation.

Chaffey College board action

Employes' 8% raise approved in budget

In spite of protests by some 50 faculty members present, the Chaffey College board Tuesday adopted a budget of $14,740,428, which grants an eight per cent pay riase to all personnel.

Members of the faculty had first demanded a 16 per cent pay raise, then lowered their request to 12.5 per cent and evoked an impasse at this point. A fact-finding panel was formed this summer and it arrived at a figure of 8.6 per cent for the recommended pay increase. This figure was presented to the board by the faculty, but rejected.

The budget for the 1975-76 academic year is geared to a tax rate of 67.91 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Last year's budget was $12,920,918 with a tax rate of 63.88 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. It allowed for a 10 per cent increase for all college personnel.

The increase in the tax rate is 4 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

The new budget also accommodates the hiring of several additional staff and the development of instructional programs and services.

In other action, the board awarded a contract for on-stie sewer construction to Rogers and Davies, Ontario, for their low bid of $88,485.

Send Americans home, says Turkish official

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Bulent Ecevit, Turkey's former premier and powerful leader of the main opposition party, proposed today that American military personnel on U.S. military installations here be sent home and the bases be closed.

The Turkish government last week halted operations at the American military installations on Turkish soil in reprisal for the refusal by the House of Representatives to ease an arms embargo against Turkey. The embargo was put into effect in February because of the Turkish invasion of Cyprus last summer.

The command of the installations has been taken over by Turkish armed forces officers but 7,000 Americans still remain on the bases.

Israeli base shelled

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas said they rocketed an Israeli border settlement early today and that Israeli artillery retaliated by pounding south Lebanon in a third straight day of border clashes.

The guerrillas gave no report on casualties, and the Israeli command did not immediately confirm the attacks.

Chino delays decision on tract map

Chino city councilmen Tuesday night postponed approval of a tentative tract map for a new housing development after the developer protested having to foot the bill for improvements to San Antonio Avenue.

The council directed the city staff to work out a "compromise solution" after Paul E. Griffin Jr. said it was "unfair" for him to pay the entire $5,400 for improvements to the street at the Pomona Freeway.

The Griffin Development is planned for 24 lots, just north of the freeway.

Council members agreed that it may be too much of a burden for the developer to pay for curb and pavement improvements.

Griffin said he would agree to put in the curbs if the city would blacktop the street.

The state should have made the improvements when the freeway was constructed, he added, and it is unfair to require Griffin to bear that burden now. "This request is unreasonable due to the extreme hardship the offsite street improvement will place on the small 24-lot subdivision, said Griffin.

Another, 111-lot subdivision south of the freeway had no such requirement imposed on it, he said, and the city committed itself to improving San Antonio Avenue there.

BEAUTY CHOP

Sixteen-year-old Linda Salcedo chops a concrete block in half as she demonstrates the activity in San Francisco Tuesday that officials of the California Teen Pageant do not want her to include in the talent phase of competition. She had filed a half-million dollar lawsuit against the pageant. She has been studying karate for eight years.

Beauty contestant sues pageant

Breaking bricks unladylike?

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sixteen-year-old Linda Salcedo breaks bricks with her bare hands. She also wins beauty pageants.

And when California Teen Pageant officials said she couldn't chop apart any concrete blocks at their contest, Miss Salcedo struck back with karate-like quickness, hitting the pageant with a $500,000 damage suit.

Miss Salcedo won the local San Francisco contest by doing karate exercises to music and slicing through concrete with her bare hands.

Later, claims Miss Salcedo, pageant organizer Rose Misuraca told her the exercises were okay for the state contest Sept. 13, but there could be no dissecting of bricks.

"I guess she feels it was unladylike for me to break bricks," said Miss Salcedo.

Her suit, filed in Alameda County Superior Court on Monday, also asks that the party organizers be barred from holding the state contest unless Miss Salcedo can do her thing with bricks.

Her attorney, Robert E. Treuhaft, said the pageant was discriminating against Miss Salcedo. A hearing was scheduled for Aug. 12.

Police sign salary pact in Ontario

A memorandum of understanding was signed Tuesday night by Ontario police officers accepting a 7.09 per cent salary and benefit increase, settling months of negotiations interrupted by a brief police strike.

Al Vande Steeg, president of the Ontario Police Officers Association said this morning that even though they signed the pact, "most of the guys (police officers) feel the city has been entirely unreasonable."

He added that the signing was prompted by a threat by the city that it "could arbitrarily give them anything they wanted too. Even less than the 7.09 per cent."

Vande Steeg said that despite the agreement reached Tuesday night, the police association intends to seek other recourses to bring the pay-benefit package nearer their original goal of 8.75 per cent. He did not elaborate on what other resources the officers might ake.

The 7.09 per cent increase accepted by the officers included a 6.15 per cent pay raise. The additional benefits would give the officers one more vacation day, additional health insurance, and unused sick pay leave time added to their retirement benefits.

Vande Steeg was one of nearly 80 Ontario police officers and police department employes who walked off their jobs three weeks ago claiming that the city had failed to agree to accept a binding arbitration agreement when negotiations moderated by a state conciliator seemed to have reached an impasse.

The strike was halted two hours later when the city gained a temporary retraining order and preliminary injunction from the West Valley Superior Court.

Angola airlift

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The Johannesburg Star said today that Portugal will mount a massive two-month airlift starting Monday to evacuate 200,000 Portuguese from the war-torn West African colony of Angola.

Groundbreaking for phone company toll center set

The General Telephone Co. will break ground Friday for a $30 million toll center adjacent to its Ontario headquarters at 207 W. D St.

The two story structure, to be completed by mid-1978, will provide area residents the latest electronic equipment for long distance service.

A public ceremony will be held on the construction site at 11 a.m. Invited guests include state Sen. Ruben Ayala, D-32nd Dist., and mayors of cities whose residents will benefit from the complex.

The toll center will house the utility's electronic tandem switching four-wire toll machine and the Traffic Service Position System and serve such telephone exchanges as Arrowhead, Crestline, Covina, Ontario, Monrovia, Etiwanda and Sierra Madre.

Exchanges in Banning, Beaumont, Redlands, San Bernardino and Pomona are scheduled to become part of the center's switching system in 1981, said Dale Eckrote, division manager.

Featured in the construction is off-street parking with an interior landscaped parking lot, landscaping on the building's north and west side.

Eckrote said the center will mean an addmtional $1.9 million annually in salaries to local employes. And when construction begins, local purchases for building materials are expected to exceed $1 million with an estimated $1.2 million to be paid local labor to construct the structure.

Two federal buildings rocked by explosions

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) — A bomb exploded early today in the Federal Office Building here, less than eight hours after an explosion at the Federal Court House in Tacoma, Everett police said.

Everett is about 30 miles north of Seattle, Tacoma is about 30 miles south.

Everett Police Lt. Dan Anderson said the bomb apparently was placed outside the door of the administrative office of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, called the Western Washington Indian Agency.

Police said there were no injuries in either the Tacoma or Everett explosion.

Anderson said the Everett blast damaged doors in the federal building and broke some windows in a department store across the street.

The building houses the FBI and the office of Rep. Lloyd Meed, D-Wash., as well as the offices of other federal agencies.

Fire Marshal Walt Cooper said, "No connection has been established with the Tacoma explosion at this time."

There was heavy damage in the Tacoma explosion, which came after a judge tightened security in the courthouse because of what he called "a California group's interest in a trial under way."

The trial before U.S. District Court Judge William N. Goodwin involves two McNeil Island Federal Penitentiary inmates, Harry Clardy and Phillip A. Tucker. They are charged with stabbing another prisoner.

U.S. Marshal Charles Robinson declined to speculate whether there was a connection between the trial and the bombing in the three-story brick building in downtown Tacoma.

Randy Byrd, FBI special agent in charge of the case, said the bomb went off in a men's room next to an FBI office on the floor below Goodwin's courtroom. The trial was not in session at the time of the explosion. It recessed early.

Authorities said the men's room was damaged extensively but that the only damage in the FBI office was cracked plaster.

A briefcase containing the explosive device was discovered in the washroom by a postal inspector shortly after 4 p.m. and the building was evacuated.

Economy bright; U.S. citizen's debt increases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board says Americans increased their indebtedness in June by the largest amount in nine months, a sign that may mean renewed confidence in the economy.

Total consumer credit increased $545 million - a second consecutive monthly advance to $186.1 billion, the Fed said Tuesday. Consumer credit had declined in six of the seven months previous to May's $72 million rise.

The increase reflected greater consumer willingness - apparently inspired by income tax rebates and other programs to speed economic recovery - to commit future earnings to spending on costly items.

The rise in indebtedness was spread across all major categories, the Fed reported. The largest increases were in personal loans and the category that covers consumer goods other than automobiles.

Borrowing to buy new cars increased $24 million during the month, although total indebtedness in that category remained $714 million below where it was a year ago.

Meanwhile, July statistics for new car sales released in Detroit Tuesday projected a mixed picture. Figures put domestic car sales at an 11-year low while gas-efficient imports posted a 30 per cent gain over last year and captured a record share of the U.S. market.

Although U.S.-built car sales were off 8 per cent from last year's July levels, they dropped only 1 per cent below the totals for June, when sales traditionally slump 9 per cent. June sales were the highest for American cars since last October.

But Armco Steel Corp., the nation's fifth largest producer, announced price increases for carbon steel sheet and strip products that it said will add $34 to the cost of steel used in medium sized automobiles.

The announcement from Armco's Middletown, Ohio, headquarters, said the increases, effective Aug. 20, will average about 9 per cent.

The firm cited a 20.5 per cent rise in costs as the cause of the price hike, which it said was justified because of "a virtual price freeze" mandated by the Council on Wage and Price Stability last December.

In economic developments abroad, new figures showed West Germany's inflation rate for the year ending May 31, was 6.1 per cent compared with 9.5 per cent in the United States, 14.1 per cent in Japan and 25 per cent in Britain.

The statistics released in Paris by the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development showed the Germans achieved first place among the industrialized Western nations at the cost of higher unemployment - estimated to average 5 per cent for 1975 - and a decrease in the Gross National Product.

And in Britain, the government announced a new subsidy to private firms for each deferred dismissal of a fulltime worker. The grant of about $22 a week is an attempt to save threatened jobs as Britain faces its worst unemployment - 4½ per cent - in 35 years.

Sears denies false advertising charge

An official of Sears, Roebuck & Co. has denied charges brought by state Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger that the firm has used false advertising and unfair business practices.

The suit, filed in Los Angeles Superior Court, claims Sears offered goods at purportedly reduced prices which were actually the firm's regular prices.

Don Primrose, a Sears official, denied the charges and argued that the firm's advertising has consistently met Federal Trade Commission guidelines.

The essence of the state action, Primrose said, is that Sears has been running the items at reduced prices so often that the sale prices are now being considered regular prices.

"The advertised sales price was not the sales price at all," said state Deputy Atty. Gen. Peter G. DeMauro, who prepared the complaint.

"We followed I don't know how many appliances," DeMauro said, "and they were just continuously on sale and any claimed savings were in our minds fictitious."

The action also charges advertised time limits on the items such as "four days only" were misleading, since the goods were available at the advertised prices at any time. The suit seeks a permanent injunction barring a continuation of the alleged practices.

"I don't think Sears is alone in such practices," DeMauro said. "We'll be filing another suit in a few days against another major retailer on the same practices." He declined to name the other firm.

"It appears the suit primarily seeks to clarify the law for the future. A rather large question is involved here and that's the retailer's ability to advertise special sale prices," he said.

"The FTC agrees with the interpretation of 'sales' and 'regular' prices as used by most retailers and, for that matter, understood by most consumers. But the California attorney general appears to have developed a new and novel interpretation of the law."

The suit claims the firm had engaged in the alleged deceptive practices for the last three years.

A spokesman for the attorney general's office said the state had been unable to reach a settlement with Sears and thus had asked the court to prohibit the alleged practices.

Steel price raised by 9%

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Armco Steel Corp. has announced price increases averaging 9 per cent on carbon sheet steel and strip products. The firm says it was a "corrective action that can no longer be delayed."

The increases, effective Aug. 20, were presented to the Council on Wage and Price Stability Tuesday by Middletown-based Armco, the nation's fifth largest steel producer.

The firm said production costs have risen 17.4 per cent, or $45 per ton, in a 13-month period. Armco's last price hike on flat-rolled products came in July 1974.

Atomic anniversary marked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Japan today observe the 30th anniversary of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima by emphasizing how close the two nations have become since World War II.

A joint communique to be issued today at the end of the third and final round of talks between President Ford and Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Miki will stress the need for the two countries to maintain their close economic and security ties, U.S. officials said.

Implicit in the communique will be the reaffirmation of the American intention to maintain its nuclear umbrella over Japan.

After a Tuesday night working dinner at the White House, Ford expressed appreciation for the transformation in U.S.-Japanese relations since World War II days, pronouncing them "respectfully intimate and remarkably free of problems."

By all accounts, the first day's talks went smoothly. Ford gave Miki assurances that the United States is "firmly committed" to the American alliance with Japan.

Postal Service to change its postmark stamp

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service soon will be stamping the names of cities on letters, but the postmark won't necessarily be the place where a letter is mailed.

The postmarks that will appear under the new program will be those of about 250 cities that have mail-processing centers, postal officials said Monday.

Since 1970 the Postal Service has been marking first-class letters only with the name of the state and the zip code of the city where the letter was processed but with no city name.

The new procedure means that persons living in mediumsized and large cities will have their hometown marked on their letters. However, letters deposited in small-population areas will bear the postmark of a larger city.

The new postmarks, the outgrowth of a test conducted earlier this year, will begin in several months after the required equipment is available, postal officials said.

"We received only favorable comments from our customers during the test, indicating acceptance wide enough to warrant implementation on a nationwide basis," Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar said in announcing the change.

Postal officials say that a policy will be continued that allows anyone to obtain a postmark from a city or town by going to the local post office. Letters can be dropped in specially marked slots to obtain the postmark of the city of mailing or window clerks can be asked to give the hometown postmark.

Platform on despite GOO

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Despite the protests of conservationists wary of another Santa Barbara oil spill, Exxon officials have moved one step closer to construction of the world's tallest offshore drilling platform.

A federal court judge Monday denied a request for a preliminary injunction against the giant oil firm by Get Oil Out (GOO), a Santa Barbara group seeking to block construction of the platform and morring facilities for tankers.

The GOO suit charged Exxon had failed to obtain a federal permit for construction of a deep-water port at the site, 20 miles northwest of Santa Barbara.

But U.S. District Court Judge Warren J. Ferguson ruled against GOO, maintaining a permit for crude oil production facilities at the site was not required because the platform and moorings do not constitute a deep-water port under federal regulations.

The suit had also claimed an Interior Department environmental impact study of the project was inadequate because it paid little attention to offshore mooring facilities and potential oil spills and ruptures caused by the increased tanker traffic.

Ferguson brushed aside the contention. "I cannot in good conscience make any claim or statement that the environmental impact statement doesn't meet every single requirement of the statute or the law," he said.

Tax measure petitions now legal

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Petitions aimed at adoption of a two-thirds vote requirement on tax measures may now be legally circulated, says the California secretary of state's office.

The office announced Monday that it has officially titled and summaried an initiative called the Two-Third Vote Tax Act of 1976.

Proponents must obtain 499,846 valid signatures by Dec. 26 in order to place the initiative constitutional amendment proposal on the statewide ballot in June, 1976.

If it wins voter approval by a two-thirds margin, each house of the legislature would have to give a two-thirds rollcall vote to any proposal imposing a tax or changing a tax rate or base.

It would not apply, however, to unemployment compensation insurance or unemployment compensation disability contributions.

The proponents are Nelson Brestoff, Margaret Shaw and Clarence Driver, all of Los Angeles, the secretary of state's office said.

Stanford's fund drive remarkable

STANFORD (AP) — Stanford University has passed the $200 million mark in its five-year fund drive to raise $300 million, university president Richard W. Lyman said Thursday.

"To receive this amount of money in such a short time would be noteworthy under any circumstances," said Lyman in a prepared statement. "To do so during a period of economic recession is truly remarkable. We feel confident that the ultimate goal of $300 million will be realized."

The fund drive was begun in 1972 and has brought donations from 44,000 individual donors.

Security code aimed at burglaries

SAN DIEGO (AP) — California Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger has proposed a building security code to make homes harder for burglars to break into.

At a news conference Monday, Younger said developers would have to install locks, doors and windows which would force a burglar to work harder and spend more time.

"We know that the longer it takes someone to break into a home, the more chance there is that the burglar will become discouraged and quit," he said.

Younger also proposed a special pawnbrokers unit to recover stolen property and mandatory prison terms for burglars with two or more prior arrests.

Lockheed's secret payments probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is investigating whether Lockheed Aircraft's secret payments to foreign officials and political organizations violated agreements under which the government guaranteed loans to the firm, an official said Monday.

The bank loans, totaling $195 million, were guaranteed by the government beause of financial difficulties which then faced the firm.

Edward C. Schmults, the Treasury Department undersecretary who serves as executive director of the Emergency Loan Guarantee Board, said the board has been reviewing for weeks the information developed in investigations by the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Congress.

Schmults said the board is not conducting an independent investigation of how Lockheed spent money overseas.

A finding that Lockheed has violated the terms of its agreements with the government could leave the door open for the board to refuse to extend further guarantees or to declare the current loans to be in default.

One year later, Mrs. Ford 'at home in White House'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Any White House marking of President Ford's first year in office will be "very, very quiet. It's not the kind of thing I feel like celebrating," says Betty Ford.

Speaking of the Watergate-related events that took her husband to the presidency, Mrs. Ford added that "maybe we'll have dinner together and commiserate."

She spoke to reporters Monday during the 10-hour flight home from Yugoslavia, the last of the five nations President Ford toured during the last 10 days.

Alternating between periods of reflection and exuberance, Mrs. Ford appeared in better health than during much of the trip. But her eyes appeared strained and anxious under a heavy application f makeup.

Although it's not something to celebrate, Mrs. Ford said,"I've been very happy" as the wife of the chief executive, although it means going on what she calls "the endurance contests" symbolized by the justended European trip.

"I feel at home at the White House," she told newsmen quietly. Still, "I say that advisedly because it belongs to the American people. We're only a page in history."

She wants her husband to run for a full term in 1976.

"Of course I do. Of course I want him to run," she said, adding with a sly grin, "He wouldntt be running unless I wanted him to."

Mrs. Ford relaxed throughout the interview. She knelt in the aisle and smoked a cigarette as she talked about the trip and the White House. Unlike nearly everyone else on the plane, she talked about "Jerry."

According to her, "Jerry's just gotten into his stride" as President. "It's like being a freshman congressman, you have to become acclimated. It takes a year."

As she knelt there, she talked of being an ordinary tourist at heart.

But no tourist could ever compare staying in palaces as she did: "Some are better than others."

One comment did sound as if it came from a tourist on a tight budget insteae of the wife of a man on a

$200,000-a-year salary: "I stayed within my quota and my husband's quota."

Collegiate ad agency jars pros

SAN DIEGO (AP) — One of the nation's newest advertising agencies costs $3 to join, and then you get a report card instead of a pay check.

The grades in Prof. Jack Haberstroh's "Advertising Campaigns" class will be out soon and in September his 70-student agency will be back to startle the business world some more.

There were more than a few professional advertising agencies happy to see the first semester end.

In less than five months Advertising Campaigns Ad Agency handled $10,000 in billings with eight clients including San Diego Wave, the local semiprofessional volleyball team; a nine-store men's clothing store chain; the Young Women's Christian Association, and a major auto dealer.

Fifty city buses carry the signs prepared for a total fee of $100 by an all-coed team. They read:

"For women on the move

"Join the YWCA

"All buses lead to the YWCA."

The agency was formed last January at San Diego State University. For their $3 laboratory fee, the junior and senior marketing and advertising students set up a limited partnership with equal decisions by students and teachers alike on what clients to seek out and serve. The auto dealer paid the $12.50 for their business license.

Supplies such as drawing pens and paper were purchased from the lab fees, and sales teams hit business firms through the city where 60 agencies abound, including the biggest commercial office with 45 professionals.

Since Haberstroh's class is in session only three hours weekly, except for what work the students did on their own, "there were real problems," he says. Possible accounts were turned down.

"We've seen some tremendous foulups," said student Ron Peeleman. A young woman once tacked posters on a halfdozen city utility poles without knowing it was illegal until a police officer stopped her with a warning. Without a salary, others dragged their heels.

The talent was there, if not the experience. Haberstroh says his students, one-third of them coeds, "are extremely artistic and many are very sales oriented. Some of my people are as good as anyone in this town."

The biggest problem was convincing businessmen that students can handle their accounts, he said. Peter Storton, president of Bill Gamble's men stores, a chain with $140,000 in its annual advertising budget, was convinced although "telling whether they created business is difficult to say."

The young advertising men and women were "within the group of those we do business with and I felt they could relate to them," Storton said. "I didn't change the design in their ads. We let them do whatever they felt would help us, and they were pretty much conservative. It probably is something we'll continue with next year."

Does business compromise ethical code?

NEW YORK (AP) — Business pays a lot more attention to ethics than you might suppose or even than business itself, wary of being thought soft, might be willing to admit.

Companies ranging in size from Exxon Corp., the world's largest, to the corner newsstand have printed codes of conduct in which they commit themselves to God, honor, community, employes, customers and sometimes profit.

Typically, one middle-size company, Rubbermaid Inc., urges employes to ask "about each activity we undertake" a list of questions that begins: "Does it represent a high degree of integrity; is it morally sound and honest?"

But recent scandalous activity involving illegal political contributions, bribes and other conduct that sometimes falls into a nebulous areabetween ethics and law, makes critics wonder if the codes are only paper.

Moreover, sometimes outright violations of the code are committed by managers who are aware, intelligent and in their own view, morally upright.

One possible and partial explanation for the behavior was found recently in a poll of managers in business that suggests subordinates may commit unethical acts out of loyalty to the firms or to superiors.

Loyalty, that is, seems to obscure the code. The alegiance of subordinates to superiors, in much the same way former President Richard M. Nixon's subordinates claimed loyalty to him, might subvert the company's higher intentions.

Archie Carroll, a faculty member in management at the University of Georgia, chose managers from various levels of business and asked if they agreed with these, among a total of 10, propositions:

1. "Managers today feel under pressure to compromise personal standards to achieve comany goals." Almost 65 per cent agreed with the statement, Carroll found, but the greatest agreement was at the lower ranks of management.
2. "I can conceive of a situation where you have sound ethics running from top to bottom but, because of pressures from the top to achieve results, the person down the line compromises." The respondents agreed, overwhelmingly.
3. "The illegal business campaign contributions of the last year or so are realistic examples of the ethics of business today." Carroll found the majority of both middle and lower managers agreed, but top managers disagreed.

Perhaps the most significant finding came in response to this statement:

"The junior members of Nixon's re-election committee who confessed that they went along with their bosses to show their loyalty is just what young managers would have done in business."

Business briefs

NEW YORK (AP) — Shortterm interest rates have moved to six months highs.

At the Treasury's weekly auction Monday, 13-month bill yields rose to 6.456 per cent from 6.318 per cent the previous week, while 26-week bill rates moved to 6.864 per cent from 6.719 per cent.

In the resale market some bills rose to yields above 7 per cent, highest since January.

NEW YORK (AP) — The first half's record savings rate slowed abruptly in July, with some thrift institutions actually finding a drop in deposits the Wall Street Journal reported today.

The Journal said key executives questioned weren't sure of the reasons for the change in savings, but felt it was probably due to increased spending and additional direct investment in bonds and notes.

Official savings figures for July will be out later this week or early next week.

LONGSTANDING RIVALS — William Sutherland, left, and Casilda Whitson hold the pose they maintained for more than 2½ days in a marathon contest at the Agitator Shop in Pomona. Contestants had to keep their hand on a television set both day and night with only a 10-minute break each four hours. As the final two competitors, each was attempting to win the top prize, a 25-inch color television. Sutherland finally gave in at 10:55 p.m. Monday. Miss Whitson, of 10007 Lindero Ave., Montclair, was declared the winner after 60 hours and 55 minutes. The contest was held in conjunction with the store's second annual marathon sale.

Referendum try on sex bill fails

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A referendum that would repeal California's new so called sexual bill of rights has failed to qualify for the June 1976 ballot, Secretary of State March Fong Eu says.

Ms. Eu, who earlier predicted that the church-backed movement would fall far short of success, said Monday that referendum backers did not get the 312,404 valid signatures needed on petitions to qualify the proposal.

County clerks submitted 315,519 raw signatures gathered by bill opponents, she said. But 3,415 were disqualified after petitions from only 12 of 58 counties were checked.

The referendum would have blocked enactment of the bill signed by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. legalizing all sexual acts by consenting adults in private. The measure takes effect Jan. 1.

Sponsors of the referendum previously conceded defeat, and were uncertain what they would do next.

"The only recourse opponents of the bill now have is to wait for the law to take effect and then attempt to qualify an initiative to amend it," Ms. Eu said.

An initiative drive also would need 312,404 valid signatures on petitions, but Ms. Eu noted petitioners would have 150 days to get them. The referendum petitioners had only 90 days to qualify.

Refugees flee from farm dispute

GLENDALE (AP) — Vietnamese refugees who inadvertently became involved in a farm labor dispute have been asked by their sponsoring agency to leave their jobs at a Ventura County egg ranch.

The 14 immigrants were requested by officials of Food for the Hungry, Inc., a nonprofit agency based here, to return to a refugee center in Weimar.

The refugees became involved in a labor dispute at Julius Goldman's Egg City in Moorpark after striking United Farm Workers members there charged the immigrants were "strikebreakers."

Some 300 workers have been involved in the prolonged UFW walkout at the ranch, whose employes are technically under contract with the rival Teamsters Union.

Larry Ward, president of the agency sponsoring the refugees, reluctantly asked the refugees to return to the Weimar facility and issued an indignant statement accusing the UFW of "depriving these new Americans of this opportunity which had meant so much to them."

Stevie Wonder's new contract is a wonder

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Stevie Wonder, the 26-year-old blind recording artist who won 10 Grammys in two years, will receive $13 million in seven years under a Motown Record Corp. contract.

Terms of the pact to be signed today in Motown's Sunset Boulevard offices were described Monday as the largest in record industry history, surpassing a reported $8 million over five years for both Elton John and Paul McCartney.

Wonder was 13 when his "Fingertips" single topped the record charts in 1963. Since then, his high-pitched voice and harmonica have mellowed as Wonder's talents blossomed to include producing as well as singing and songwriting.

"I'm staying at Motown because it is the only viable surviving black-owned company in the record industry," Wonder said in a prepared statement.

"Motown represents hope and opportunity for new as well as established black performers and producers. If it were not for Motown, many of us just wouldn't have had the shot we've had at success and fulfillment."

Wonder has 13 gold records, including each of his last six albums, and played all the instruments on two of the albums.

He won five Grammy awards in 1974 and five in 1975.

Negotiations on the contract began two nearly two years ago between Johannon Vigoda, Wonder's representative, and Ewart Abner of Motown.

Breathing can cure stuttering

CHICAGO (AP) — A young Chicago psychologist thinks he's accidentally discovered a cure for one of man's oldest mental tics — stuttering.

"It was kind of like the principle of serendipity — finding one thing when you are looking for something else," said Dr. Greg Nunn, 25, director of the Institute for Youth Development at Read Mental Health Center in Chicago.

With a treatment emphasizing controlled breathing and relaxation, Nunn claims he can eliminate 80 to 90 per cent of a person's stuttering in two hours. Since he began work on the technique 2½ years ago, he has treated about 70 patients aged 4 to 67. He says he has an 85 per cent success rate the first day and 93 per cent success over four months.

Nunn says he stumbled on the cure while working for Dr. N.H. Azrin, a behaviorist at Anna State Hospital, on a technique to control stuttering by training sufferers to read aloud in time with a metronome.

He noticed a woman patient was breathing irregularly. Nunn said the breathing pattern was a sign of anxiety, the primary cause of stuttering.

"So I thought, 'Well, what happens if I change her breathing pattern around and have her speak with a change in breathing?' When she came to a word that she was stuttering on I asked her to stop, take a deep breath and read on. And much to my amazement she stopped stuttering."

He reasoned that the metronome procedure regulated stuttering by regulating breathing. If a stutterer could control his breathing, Nunn thought, he could control his speech.

"We teach them to think about what it is they are going to say before they start speaking," he said.

Nunn stresses that an individual maintain a comfortable posture, breathe deeply and regularly, and relax to improve speech patterns.

"Then what I do is I teach them how to breathe when they start to speak. That's the secret ingredient. What I do is I will have them start from the beginning of a book. Before they start speaking they take a deep breath, let just a little bit of air escape through the mouth, say the word, and let the rest of the air remaining in their lungs flow out."

The procedure is repeated, gradually increasing the number of words between breaths.

Litton gets extra for destroyers

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Six months of negotiations have ended with the Navy agreeing to pay Litton Industries, Inc., $280.2 million more for 30 destroyers being built by the firm.

The extra payment announced Monday will raise the total cost of the destroyers to about $2.1 billion, a company spokesman said. The 30 DD963 class vessels are being built by Litton's Ingalls Shipbuilding Division at Pascagoula, Miss.

The company told the Securities and Exchange Commission its negotiations with Navy officials were undertaken under an "Incentive Price Revision (Successive Targets)" clause in the destroyer contract.

Both Litton and Navy spokesmen stated the price rise was a reflection of unanticipated increases in the cost of material and labor.

However, Litton officials said the firm's target profit was reduced to $108.2 million from the $143 million estimated when the contract was awarded in June, 1970.

But they noted that because the contract has a variety of incentives for profit, the traget profit figure is not a reliable indication of how much profit or loss may be sustained ultimately by the company.

The firt DD963, the Spruance, is due to be delivered to the Navy this month, nine months late. The last of the DD963s is expected to be delivered 20 months late.

But a Navy spokesman said the target price increase did not take into account delivery delays.

Comment: 'America, you is beautiful!'

MOSCOW (AP) — More than 100,000 Muscovites have flocked to the exhibition hall in Luzhniki Park over the past two weeks for the most popular show in town: a modest display of American household goods.

The reason for the success of the month-long show, which opened July 17, seems to have more to do with American people than U.S. goods.

"I'd say about 80 per cent of the questions I get are persona or at least have nothing to do with the exhibit itself," said Lisa Archipow, of Buffalo, N.Y., one of 22 Russian-speaking guides. "They just don't seem so impressed with our technology as they once did."

The government-sponsored exhibit is billed as a display of furnishings, household goods and construction materials for the "typical" American family.

The last time anything like this "Technology for the Ameican Home" exhibit appeared in Moscow, Nikita Khrushchev and Richard M. Nixon engaged in their impromptu "kitchen debate" in 1959 on the relative merits of their countries' development and ideologies.

In today's atmosphere of detente, Muscovites seem more interested in talking with young guides about the American way of life than in fingering the goods.

The Russians — passing through the pavilion at a rate of about 1,000 an hour — like to quiz the guides on how much they earn, what their parents do for a living, how American children are schooled and how the unemployed manage to survive in the United States.

"They act incredibly grateful for the chance to talk with us. Exhibit guides in this country don't relate to people the way we do," said Bill Graves of Washington, D.C.

The guides say they have found their reception in the Soviet capital far more relaxed and stimulating than in the provincial cities where they toured with the exhibit for four months.

"After Tashkent and Baku, I was ready to go home, but here it's been great," said Anne Bohsack, 23, of Huntington, N.Y. "They aren't so defensive here, so ready to defend the mother country."

Charlie Blackman of Washington, D.C., agreed, interpreting the tougher reception in the outer republics as "a natural psychological reaction when you know you haven't got it so good."

Near the pavilion's exit sits a guest book in which Soviets may comment on their impressions of the exhibit. Most remarks were unsigned or initialed. Here is a sampling of Soviet reaction:

"We wish we could have more opportunities of seeing plain Americans and having heavy talks with them" — unsigned.

"I expected more. The only thing I liked was the whirlpool bath and I didn't like the price of that" — an engineer.

"Beautiful but not very interesting. The technology shown is pretty weak. You can't amaze us with this" — a student.

One of the rare signed comments was written in English with a dramatic scrawl: "America, you is beautiful!!!"

The exhibit ends Aug. 17 in Moscow and travels to three more Soviet cities.

Education money is running out

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The president of the University of California says "education of the highest quality requires money and we don't have the required amount of money."

But Dr. David S. Saxon told the Comstock Club Monday the university "still does very well in attracting the top choices" for faculty, but the numbers of these top people we can appoint that has dropped drastically."

Saxon, appointed president in March, said the university has compensated with budget-cutting by deferring maintenance on buildings, not replacing equipment, falling behind the rate of inflation on salaries, and diluting the faculty-student ratio.

"But we're coming to the end of the road" in ways to cut expenses, he added.

"If student-faculty ratios are going down it means we're not adding the required numbers of young people" to the faculty, said Saxon.

He said he hasn't noticed any large numbers of faculty members leaving the university because of low pay. But without an influx of new young members, "they're just going to get old together," he said.

Saxon described the ways in which the state has benefitted from the university's activities in agricultural research and other areas.

Repeal vetoed

In March 1766, repeal of the Stamp Act in Britain was followed by the Declaratory Act claiming the King, by and with the consent of Parliament, had authority to make laws to bind colonies in all respects.

Big return for little investment

AZLE, Tex. (AP) — Melton Dimock squinted into the bright Texas sun as he surveyed the sophisticated components of the super-expensive F-111 aircraft, industrial jewels, office machines, furniture and late model cars that all once belonged to the U.S. government.

They are junk now.

"I'm sure we've got well over $1 million worth of government equipment," Dimock said as he studied the castoffs originally paid for with U.S. tax dollars.

"Altogether we probably paid $500 or $600 for it," said Dimock, a partner in a big salvage firm here whose "holdings" are spread over several acres of once-prime pastureland in the cow country northwest of Fort Worth.

Dimock said his firm gets "three or four sheets a month" from the General Services Administration (GSA), the federal agency charged with disposing of unwanted materials.

"They don't care what they get for the stuff they have for sale. They're not in the moneymaking business; they're in the getting-rid-of business."

In recent weeks, Dimock and his partner, Louis Freeman, have consummated the following transactions with the U.S. government.

—Entered a successful bid of $37 each for three Litton bombsights off the F-111, which originally cost Uncle Sam $66,000 apiece.

—Bought $26,000 of tiny rubies and sapphires, used as jewel bearings in precision equipment, for $66.

—Purchased "about an acre and a half" of miscellaneous surplus items, including desks, appliances and other furniture for a total investment of $118.

Some months ago, the partners paid $35 for a radar "terrain finder" that had cost $185,000 in federal funds. They later resold the equipment for $15,000.

"Sometimes we're the only bidder," Dimock said. "When that happens, we can bid as little as $10 and get the stuff."

Used cars are put up for bid by the GSA every few weeks, he said.

"We just bought a 1971 Plymouth Fury with air and power for $161 and a 1972 Ambassador, similarly equipped, for $377," Dimock said.

Used cars have an obvious retail value, but some other items that cost American taxpayers tens of thousands of dollars only a few months ago may not move as quickly.

Who will buy, for instance, the F-111 bombsights?

Freeman and Dimock shrug their shoulders.

"I don't have any idea what we'll do with them," said Freeman. "But at the price we paid, who cares?"

Pomona school budget passes on 3-1 vote

By PHYLLIS CANNON
PB Staff Writer

After a vain attempt by member Gene Whitlock to trim a tax increase, Pomona school board Tuesday night on a 3-1 vote adopted a record $32,289,932 general fund budget for fiscal 1975-76.

It calls for a 94 cent per $100 of assessed valuation tax increase and leaves $1,733,222 in three reserve accounts.

It shows a beginning balance of $3,337,043 — funds left over from fiscal 1974-75 — and includes the 8.5 per cent salary increases granted employes.

Whitlock called levying the full 94 cent tax hike "an unnecessary rip off" and cast the no vote against adopting the budget. "Down the line, looking at the broad picture, I see $3 million in the reserves a year from now. I propose a 25 cent reduction in the tax increase, a $500,000 reduction in the reserves to give taxpayers relief," Whitlock said.

His proposal died for lack of a second.

Member Ken Pine abstained from voting on the budget, explaining that from a "fiscal and business standpoint" he agreed a large reserve was desirable. But, he said, "when we went to the taxpayers in May we asked for money to keep us as is. We did not ask for more. It's up to the board now to retain credibility with the voters. We shouldn't underestimate the memory of a taxpayer. It's up to us to watchdog our own funds."

"My position," said board member Mary Montes, "is that we need the money. I feel we serve our community better if we utilize the money to enhance the educational system. Yes, many of our people are poor, but I know how poor people feel about their children."

She made the motion to adopt the budget. Her motion was seconded by C. Allen Braswell who urged the board to "put credibility in our reserves so we don't have to respond on a crisis basis."

The third yes vote was cast by board President Don Donnelly who took the position the taxpayers were getting a break because the board legally could have levied a $1.31 per hundred assessed valuation tax increase, 94 cents voters approved, 27 cents allowable by the state and 10 cents in the form of permissible community service tax.

The tax increase the budget calls for combines the 27 cents the state allows and 77 cents of the 94 cents the voters approved. The 10 cent community service tax had to be dropped because state law prohibits a school district from levying community service tax when it is not levying all voter-approved tax.

The 94 cent tax increase the district voters approved in May is to extend over a two-year period. There was some discussion along the line that if the reserve did build up to $3 million by the end of this school year, perhaps the tax rate could be cut for fiscal 1976-77.

Before adopting the budget, Donnelly declared a public hearing on the document. No one rose from the audience to speak to the issue.

With the 94 cent tax hike, district taxpayers this year will pay $5.4816 per $100 of assessed valuation to support Pomona's public schools.

The new budget, $6.5 million larger than the fiscal 1974-75 adopted budget, reflects state income of $17 million, county income of $22,505 and local income of $11.9 million, which with the $3.3 million beginning balance total $32.2 million.

It calls for expenditures of $30.5 million leaving the remainder in reserve accounts.

In the expenditures category, $17.2 million is for salaries for certificated employes, $5.2 million is for salaries for classified employes and $3.2 million is for employe benefits.

Some $1.3 million is to be spent on books, supplies and equipment replacement, while $1.7 million is earmarked for personal service contracts, travel, conferences, dues and memberships, insurance, utilities, legal, election and audit expenses and other administrative expenses.

The general fund budget includes $821,554 for new sites, buildings, furniture and equipment and $989,082 for debt service and student transfers.

Reserves are held $1.4 million in appropriation for contingencies, $250,000 for curriculum improvement and $25,000 in general reserve.

The cafeteria account ($1.3 million) and building funds ($1 million with $205,274 in reserves) are held in separate accounts.

Funds the district receives through federal grants are held separately and not reflected in the general fund budget.

TOO HOT FOR SKATING With summer heat debilitating children as well as adults, quiet games, such as Yahtzee, are replacing the skateboard in popularity. Here Stanley Trobaugh, recreation leader at Garfield Park in Pomona, plays a game with Howard Much, 8½, while the skateboard lies by.

S.D. throwing birthday party to itself—age 15

The City of San Dimas will mark its 15th birthday Thursday with a barbeque at San Dimas Canyon Park and a host of acitivites ranging from a Hula Hoop contest to kung fu demonstrations.

Highlight of the program will be the Little Miss San Dimas Contest, culminating when the current tiny queen, Michelle Patterson, crowns her successor.

The Army Reserve Bicentennial Color Guard will provide the escort for the presentation of a special cake designed in the shape of a huge drum.

The celebration will begin at 5 p.m. with Hula Hoop and Frisbie championships, followed by a "balloon to the moon" activity.

Stage entertainment will include modern jazz students in "Lightly Latin" dance arrangements; special performances by the San Dimas High School drill team and the San Dimas Shooting Stars; selections from "The Music Man" by the orchestra and cast from Foothill Productions; a self-defense demonstration by Luis Fried, a sixth degree black belt martial arts instructor; and dances by Foot Stompin'.

The public address system for the stage numbers is provided by Mr. and Mrs. Carson Hawk.

Mayor Jim Lough and Lee Bell, president of the San Dimas Chamber of Commerce, will serve as masters of ceremonies for the jointly sponsored city-chamber event.

The Red Cross and the Los Angeles County Fire Department, library and sheriff's department will host special displays and equipment demonstrations. Games and sports equipment will be available throughout the celebration.

Ted Glauthier and Jess Duff are general chairmen of the event. Among those assisting are Loren Wendt, Fred Shannon, George Twining, Dick Gruszka, Lowell Godfrey, Don Haefer, Stanley Plummer, Dorothy Marcus, Bernice Walther, Butch Otting, Warren Brehm, Bohn Dampler, Ralph Harpster and Bill Lange.

Driftwood Dairy will donate the lemonade and Pinnacle Peak will supply the western style beans.

Tickets are $3 for adults and $1.50 for children under 12. They may be purchased from any chamber member, at the chamber office or at City Hall.

Chino Civic Center project advances

Development of the Chino Civic Center moved forward this week when the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors approved preliminary plans and cost estimates on the stie development's second phase.

The board then authorized the architect to proceed with final plans and specifications, which must also be approved by the Chino City Council.

The project's second phase will include the relocation of some underground utilities, installation of sidewalks, parking lots, patios, lighting, landscaping and irrigation system and removing the old streets, curbs and sidewalks.

Officials estimate the cost at $427,360, with the city and county each paying half, said Supervisor Robert Townsend.

Because of the size of the project, city and county officials had divided the work into two phases. The first phase included the excavation of basements for the city hall and police station, relocation of some utilities and excavation for the central heating and air conditioning building.

The civic center is a joint project between the city and county and involves 11 acres bounded by Central and Chino avenues and Sixth and D streets.

The county plans to build a 46,000 square foot structure to house various county agencies, including two municipal court rooms. The city proposes to construct a city hall and police station.

The Pomona firm of Cashion and Horie has been employed as the architect for the site development.

In a related matter, supervisors awarded a $10,000 contract to Citizens Transportation Co. to move the Chino Glass Co. from a building at Sixth and D streets which is part of the development.

How sweet it is! —Chino school tax rate cut 11 cents

By JON MORRIS
BP Staff Writer

A $14.8 million final budget — containing some good news for taxpayers — was adopted by the Chino school board Tuesday night.

The budget, unanimously approved without comment by trustees, calls for an 11-cent drop in the total tax rate, to $5.0787 per $100 assessed valuation.

Board members had thoroughly hashed out the 1975-76 general fund budget at previous meetings, calling for cutbacks in expenditures in order to build up reserves.

Reserves now total $445,000, an increase of $4,100 over the publication budget, according to Al Searfoss, assistant superintendent for business.

After no one spoke during the public hearing on the budget, trustee Al McCombs said that he assumed "the board is doing a good job," since the plan was not opposed.

Gladys Briggs, president of Citizens for Improved Education, anti-year-round school group, indicated McCombs' assumption was wrong, and requested a chance to speak. The hearing was closed, however, and she was ruled out of order by board President Augustine Tapia.

The $14,805,642 budget (including total expenditures and ending balance), is down by $160,000 compared to publication figures. It is nearly $2 million higher than last year's $12.9 million plan.

Reason for the 11-cent decrease is a reduction in the state building loan repayment requirement, of $141,359. Last year's tax rate was $5.1883.

The break for taxpayers was not predicted in the publication budget, which called for only a one-cent tax drop.

Searfoss said other changes in the final budget include a six-cent increase in the district's delinquency tax factor and new assessed valuation figures.

The changes, however, almost balance each other out, he added. Valuation figures from homeowners increased by $1,410,230.

Overall, Searfoss estimated a nine per cent increase in assessed valuation. Also, a six per cent boost in average daily attendance was predicted.

The budget contains an 8.5 per cent salary increase for all employes plus a three per cent boost given for experience and educational advancement. Total cost for salaries and employe benefits accounts for $11 million of the total budget.

Budget, tax rate rise for Bonita

By JEANNE HEMENOVER
PB Correspondent

A final 1975-76 budget reflecting a $216,000 increase over a $10,144,809 publication budget was approved by Bonita school trustees Tuesday.

The increase in the $10,361,022 budget generates from an expectation of additional state, federal and local funds. Also included in the $216,000 figure is a beginning balance of $5,500.

The $5.6403 per $100 assessed valuation tax rate used in the final budget is up from the 1974-75 tax rate of $4.0597 and a tax rate of $4.8687 in the publication budget.

Use of the $216,000 increase in the budget was made for general purposes throughout the budget as well as for a $129,000 contingency fund expected to be used for teacher salary raises.

Teachers have not settled on salary increases with the district as yet. According to Supt. James Johnson, the teachers have asked the board to wait to see what increases other districts in the area settle on so that Bonita's salary position can remain competitive.

Salary adjustments for teachers are expected to come up before the board for action later this month.

During Tuesday's meeting board members also decided to maintain the date of Sept. 15 for the opening of school despite action by other local districts delaying the beginning of the year until a day later in observance of the Jewish holy day, Yom Kippur. Trustees felt that delay in the opening of school would be financially damaging to the district, but stated that permanent seating assignments will not be made on the first day of school and registration of students will be done prior to Sept. 15 to help eliminate problems for students and teachers observing the holiday.

Upland board to ask voters for 29% boost in school tax

By CONNIE CASLER
PB Correspondent

Upland residents will be asked Nov. 4 to hike elementary school district taxes 29 per cent to $1.60 per $100 assessed valuation.

Upland Elementary School District trustees Tuesday night agreed to call a special election to put the proposed 33.9 cent tax hike before the voters.

Citing district deficit spending the past two years, Supt. Bill Plaster and Business Manager Glenn Hardy said drastic changes are needed in Upland's school financing.

Hardy said the new statewide school financing bill which attempts to equalize financing among the state's rich and poor districts, allows for only six per cent annual inflation. But inflation is running 12 to 14 per cent, Hardy said.

Because Upland taxpayers support both Upland Elementary and Chaffey High School districts, and some Chaffey taxes filter back to grade schools, Hardy said net effect of the override would be about 12 per cent hike to taxpayers when both district taxes are combined.

Cost to taxpayers would range annually from an extra $25.43 for the owner of a $30,000 home to $72.04 for an $85,000 home.

Board members passed the override recommendation shortly after they unanimously adopted a $6.8 million 1975-76 budget reflecting a $1.27 tax rate per $100 assessed valuation. If the tax override is successful, it could not, by law, become effective until the 1976-77 school year.

The override would last through the 1980-81 school year when the state legislature is required to have a new school financing statute on the books.

School planners held the $6.8 million 1975-76 budget to $100,000 above last year's operating ledger.

Plaster said the district is concerned with increased enrollment north of Foothill Boulevard where two new tracts of 126 homes each are springing up. He said some busing of students north of Foothill to schools south of the highway may be necessary this fall.

But, he said, school age population is not as heavy as expected in the new homes. A recent census of the district by volunteers indicates Upland now averages one school age child for every two homes reflecting a falling birth rate nationwide.

Plaster expressed some doubt over a new county directive which orders all "strenuous school activities" to cease once a first stage smog alert is called. He said no one so far has defined what "strenuous" means which could leave the district open to legal action.

Citrus College tax rate dips

The Citrus College board adopted its 1975-76 budget Tuesday which granted an 8.5 per cent pay raise to all personnel, yet reduced the tax rate by .0339 cents per $100 accessed valuation.

The tax rate will be .6032 per $100 assessed valuation, according to Peter Hall, director of business services at Citrus College, Azusa.

The total budget accepted by the board is $11,592,511. Of this, $2,179,140 is from the previous balance and $9,413,371 is income. The budget for the coming year is about $1 million over the budget for the 1974-75 academic year.

Wrestling with good and evil

We have always had our doubts about the legitimacy of professional wrestling as a "sport," but it never occurred to us that it is in reality a "modern morality play" staged for the edification of frothing fans.

According to University of Chicago scholar Thomas Hendricks, professional wrestlers "try to assemble their identities within a framework of beliefs or symbols which seem to motivate the audience's adoration or invective." Or so he is quoted in Human Behavior magazine.

A typical match, he says, pits a "hero" or "man of the people" against an insulting, dirty-dealing "villain" with a name like Killer, Mad Dog or Butcher. Thus the agents of good and evil vie for physical supremacy.

The hero adheres to the rules. He uses legal holds, "breaks clean," doesn't bring "foreign objects" (hairpins, bottle caps, etc.) into the ring. The villain on the other hand flaunts the regulations and "gets away with murder."

The referee, who often appears the last to become aware of a violation, represents the ineffectiveness of official justice, and the crowd does not really expect control to be exercised.

But even goodness has its limits. Tormented to the breaking point, the hero may explode into an illegal punch. Mere legality has proven insufficient to contain the forces of evil, but moral righteousness prevails as the hero joins in the villain's game and beats him at it.

And the crowd loves it.

Free enterprise in hospital room

The standard advice given to patients considering which hospital to choose has been "profit-making no, nonprofit yes."

The concept was based on the idea that any hospital in business to make a profit, couldn't, at the same time, also be in the business of taking the best possible care of patients.

Also, the proprietary, or profit-making hospitals, received a bad name because they were often owned by groups of physicians who also staffed them — a situation that could (and often did) lead to conflicts of interests that caused the patient to suffer both financially and medically.

Today, however, things have changed and there is an increasing amount of attention being shown toward investor-owned and operated hospitals. Ownership of such hospitals has changed from individuals and small groups to giant corporations listed on the major stock exchanges.

And according to Barron's business and financial weekly, these investor-owned hospitals are the fastest growing segment of non-government health care.

Everybody knows that hospitals of all sizes have been notorious for red tape, poor customer service, substandard food and inefficient use of capital. Because of the bureaucracies that developed in many large nonprofit hospitals, archaic financial and management systems often became more firmly entrenched instead of outmoded.

Coupled with booming operating costs the mismanagement has led to real problems. Hospital patients may pay more than $200 per day and the hospitals still lose money. Consumers wonder how they can pay more than twice what they would have to shell out for a luxury hotel, and still receive poor service and unpalatable meals.

The idea behind the investor-owned and operated hospital groups is that the free enterprise system can return more satisfying patient care at lower costs

For example, nine months after the Loma Linda (Calif.) Community Hospital had opened, $700,000 had been lost and the hospital was near bankruptcy.

But within only two months after the hospital's management was taken over by Hospital Affiliates, one of the largest hospital management firms, "the staff was cut, laboratory contracts renegotiated, three internal medicine specialists recruited, collections doubled from $100,000 to $200,000 and the hospital was operating in the black," Barron's notes.

The tide is turning, albeit slowly at first, and the day may soon come when all hospitals are either privately owned or professionally managed. When that time comes perhaps the patients will begin to receive the services they are entitled to.

Chino's year round schools

Dear Editor:

In regards to the year round school versus traditional school problem in Chino. Why hasn't the advantages of YRS been published lately? YRS offers so much for children, such as review at the beginning of the school year has almost been eliminated. If a child does have problems within a certain 9 week period he can attend intersession for extended help, make-up or in some cases enrich their previous learning. Rather than get so far behind he either fails that grade or is put into the next grade completely confused.

We don't have double sessions in Chino, due to YRS. To me double sessions are an unsatisfactory educational alternative. And most parents would agree on that. YRS increases a school's capacity. Delinquency observed by other districts on YRS, juvenile vandalism has become less. Boredom and fatigue is minimized by going to school in 9 week periods. Vacations can be planned around 4 seasons (3 weeks each) instead of the mad dash during the 3 summer months, plus the traditional Easter and Christmas weeks.

Since Chino is growing by leaps and bounds we are faced with another problem. We need a school bond passed in November, or in a short period of time we will be on YRS and double sessions at some of our schools. This no one could possibly want. The Citizens for Improved Education (C.I.E.) are going to fight this school bond, mainly because there are children on a waiting list to get into the traditional program.

If this group (C.I.E.) is for improving education why would they fight against a school bond? If we don't get more classroom space HOW can education be improved? A child on double sessions does not receive the many things offered during a full day of school. If you are one of the few who do not care about how your child is educated and consider your tax dollar, with YRS the school does not sit dormant. It's used 12 months that your tax dollar has paid for not just 9 months. The school bond (as I understand it) does not raise the taxes, it mainly extends our paying time on the last bond we voted on. The state regulates the paying of bonds. The new residents of Chino who have paid high prices for their homes and have high taxes are also concerned, but most who have moved to Chino know our schools offer a good education and since the school bond is a result of the rapid growth, it seems that all would want the school space for their children plus the children to come, so that all can have a good education, not a double session situation.

The school bond election in November IS NOT a YRS versus traditional fight, it is something we all need.

The Chino School Board has been working very hard to get the schools going for both YRS and traditional. It takes time, give them a chance to do their job. — Judy Dwyer, Chino

A surprising TV marriage

WASHINGTON — Bitter are the ways of sweetness and light!

For a vagrant hour, I laid down my muckrake, put aside the adversary scowl and sat down with a President to sing patriotic paeans. For which lapses I have now been suitably punished.

The President's press secretary, Ron Nessen, has accused me of having duped the President. "I think we have been had," Nessen howled from Helsinki, "I think we got conned."

For a mischievious moment, I was tempted to let Nessen's statement stand. It isn't everyone, after all, who can claim credit for snookering the President.

I recall how my late mentor, Drew Pearson, reveled in the notoriety of having been called nasty names by three Presidents. How the old master would relish from beyond the pale the spectacle of his awkward protege charged with traducing a President.

But a long-indentured slavery to the facts compels me to decline Nessen's unintended accolade and to set the record straight.

My appearance before the TV cameras with President Ford grew out of my Bicentennial activities. I was supposed to talk with the President about America, its past and its future, its failings and its greatness.

I got into the act because of my notoriety as an establishment baiter. It was thought that two such disparate figures would give the program an extra dimension, having somewhat the unifying effect of a joint endorsement by beauty and the beast.

Nessen has now charged that I hoaxed the President into a television interview under false pretenses claiming for it a wider distribution than I could deliver. Not so. He was told from the beginning that it was not planned as a network program, that it would be offered piecemeal to individual stations across the country.

This is confirmed by Nessen's own account to The New York Times, which reported: "When the interview was completed, Mr. Nessen informed the President that it had been made on 'spec' (speculation). Mr. Ford shrugged and said it was worthwhile anyway."

In the meantime, the producers got enthused about the program, and the distribution sights were raised to the network level. It came as a genuine shock to me that none of the networks, not even the Public Broadcasting Service, would broadcast the President's patriotic reflections.

I let my outrage get the best of me and wrote a column assailing the network czars. Something is wrong somewhere, it seems to me, when no network will carry a Bicentennial program featuring the President. It troubles me that a few network czars have such a stranglehold on the public airwaves.

The column brought forth a flood of letters and calls. Readers protested the affront to the President. Lawyers urged me to bring an antitrust suit against the networks. Station owners offered to run the program. And on Capitol Hill, Democrats and Republicans alike took to the floor to denounce the networks.

In all the uproar, not a person supported the networks. Everyone agreed that the President's views on America should be aired. It was unanimous.

But then Nessen, who is paid to promote the President, spoke up in Helsinki. Curiously, the geninal Ron was not the least upset at the networks for refusing to broadcast his boss' views on the greatness of America.

"I am mad but not at the networks," he told The New York Times. "I'm mad at Jack Anderson."

Let the record show that Nessen wasn't mad at anyone before I excoriated the networks. I spoke to Nessen twice after my TV stint with the President. Ron expressed his delight with the program; he had no complaints; he said nothing about being "conned." Not until I got naughty with the networks did he get mad.

Allowances should be made, of course, for Ron Nessen. After all, he served the networks for 13 years; he has served President Ford for only 10 months. Ron's heart, apparently, is still with NBC News.

It is a bit astonishing, nonetheless, that Democratic stalwarts lambasted the networks for rejecting the President's patriotic remarks while his own press secretary defended the networks.

Pres. Ford's timing is off

By TERRY M. WADE
PB Washington Writer

WASHINGTON — It's time to drag out an old American adage — "what's good for the gander is good for the goose."

Congress is on the verge of passing an increase in their own salaries and the salaries of all high-ranking government leaders, including the vice president.

Not only are they planning to increase the salaries, but Congress may even eliminate the always difficult task of voting its own pay increases by making them automatic each time federal employes receive a cost-of-living increase.

Perhaps a pay hike is only right, after all congressmen only make $42,500 per year, plus benefits.

The real point at issue is the President's "strong" support of the pay increases.

This is the same president who has attempted to change food stamp eligibility so fewer people could receive the stamps, who demanded federal employes receive only five per cent pay increases and vetoed no less than 11 bills. All in the name of economy in government during the recession.

It is difficult to find justification for his support of this latest measure to line the pockets of people who, even by today's inflated standards, are hardly paupers.

Mr. Ford, who is seeking election to the Presidency, may find that most Americans can't understand why he doesn't mind asking poor folks and most middle class folks to tighten their belts and ride out the recession and at the same time supports increasing salaries for congressmen who make $42,500 annually and government officials who make more than that.

Ford's arguments for increasing salaries or government employes are sound. His timing is just terrible.

The President is right when he points out it is getting increasingly difficult to persuade top rate personnel to stay with the government when private industry can offer much higher salaries.

The level of quality in government is directly proportionate to the level of salaries in relation to private enterprise. The lower the salaries in government go the lower the quality, and you already know how low it is, in government goes.

Despite all those good arguments you can't tell the average Joe to cut his standard of living when he can see others getting richer and richer.

Mr. Ford should remember — "What's good for the gander is good for the goose" — or is it?

If the pay hikes are passed one has to wonder.

Just in jest

For years it has been an accepted fact of life that "a little learning is a dangerous thing." But don't be too sure just because someone once said it was so! Now comes a survey made by the National Driving Institute which definitely proves a lot of education can be equally disastrous. The more education a person has, the survey indicates, the more likely that person is to fall asleep at the wheel of an automobile.

However, in all justice to higher education, I feel the National Driving Institute should qualify its findings and specify the exact type of sleep producing higher education the folks interviewed in its cross section survey were suffering from. Certainly those drowsy intellectuals couldn't have been graduates of Scottsdale Community College, in Arizona, where in addition to courses in Wine Drinking and Belly Dancing, a class in Varmint Calling is also being offered — a class where students are taught how to call varmints by using a special reed instrument to imitate the sound of a dying rabbit. For I defy you to show me anyone who calls varmints by imitating the cry of a dying rabbit on a reed instrument who doesn't have to be wide awake at all times and under all conditions.

It's open season on Arthur Parrish

DURHAM, N.C. (NEA) — Arthur Parrish, as they say down South, is in a heap of trouble. A fugitive since spring, he has been ruled an outlaw by provision of an 1866 Carolina statute which declares that "any citizen of the state may capture, arrest or bring him to justice, and in case of flight or resistance by him, after being called on and warned to surrender, may slay him without accusation of any crime."

In short, it's open season on Arthur Parrish; he's wanted by the police, dead or alive.

Once every state in America had outlaw provisions. Lacking manpower and mobility, early peace officers regularly declared suspected criminals "outside the protection of the law." The idea then was to simplify the morality of civilian vigilantism. Since the fugitives were not entitled to legal considerations, even though they may not have been convicted of any crime, citizens could shoot them on sight, secure in the knowledge the killings were responsible and socially desirable.

Today only North Carolina clings to the frontier spirit. A few other states do retain the right to declare traitors outside the law, but only North Carolina provides the punishment for any felon. It's not used often, but police say it's usually used effectively. One study indicates that of 19 men declared outlaws in the past decade, only Arthur Parrish remains at large. Two other committed suicide, while the rest surrendered, as one police detective explains, "because they damn well knew what was good for them."

Besides its successes, the outlaw statute has been used with judicious intelligence. Leaving aside the fact that black fugitives are said to suffer the matter disproportionately, the kind of suspects affected have usually been judged genuine public menaces. Parrish, for example, is wanted in connection with a grocery store murder in which the victim had his head cut almost off and his body then left overnight in a refrigerated meat room.

Yet for all the care with which the statute has been invoked, it smells to many here of barbarism. State legislator M. C. Michaux, Jr., for one, says the provision is "clearly unconstitutional" because it denies the accused the right to due process: "If you read the law it's as broad as all outdoors. It says that any felon is subject. That means, I suppose, if you got a guy who embezzled $10,000 from a judge somewhere, that judge might be angry enough to invoke implications. The implications are enormous."

Largest of the implications, perhaps, is that concerning the propriety of allowing any farmer with a gun the right to plink away with impunity at human beings. "Suppose you've got a grudge against somebody," says one policeman, "and that somebody vaguely resembles somebody just declared an outlaw. Who is to question your motives if you shoot away and then just plead mistaken identity?"

Fears of this sort have helped raise the consciousness of the outlaw matter throughout the state. But thus far to no conclusion except the status quo. The last meeting of the legislature was divided on a repeal bill, the House decisively for it and the Senate 35-10 against. Michaux is hopeful for passage next time around, probably in 1977, but many feel otherwise. North Carolinians are not noted for being soft on thuggery (there are 82 people in the death house here), and in fact the majority may agree with the summation of criminal rights recently uttered by a prosecutor hunting a cop killer: "If we catch him, and catch him alive, I'm going to try him for his life, and may God have mercy on his soul!"

Meanwhile, everybody continues to look for Arthur Parrish. Some feel he has fled the state. But others surmise he has done what anyone would do in his rather risky circumstances: "Go on welfare, drop out of sight, accept no calls, and grow a hell of a shaggy beard."

Two payments late; foreclosure begins

Can a mortgage holder start foreclosure proceedings on a home for lack of two monthly payments?

They are trying to do this in my case.

I bought this home under Program 235 of the Federal Housing Administration. — H. P., Pomona.

Technically under this program foreclosure proceedings can be started after one month, we are told by Carol Way, administrative assistant in charge of counseling for the Valley Association of Cities.

However, she says, in most cases that won't be done until after you have missed three monthly payments.

Each case is different because Program 235 is designed to help low income people buy houses. It provides partial government subsidy according to income. There are many technicalities.

The Valley Association of Cities wants to help stabilize the program and is interested in helping you.

You can get advice on your individual problem by consulting with the association staff at 666 N. Park Ave., Pomona.

Several years ago, approximately 1968 or 1969, my wife and I subscribed to an accident and health plan recommended to us by our mortgage holder, Hayward Tamkin Co.

This company eventually sold our mortgage to Western Mortgage Corp., which continued to carry the accident and health policy. However, the accident and health policy has passed to several insurance companies along the way.

Each time an insurance company assumed the responsibility of the policy, we received a letter stating that our premium and coverage would remain the same. Consequently, we did not question any of the changes since our original policy was to cover us for five years of disability.

Several years ago I contracted cancer. I have been disabled for over one year. During the time I have been disabled the insurance has covered the mortgage payments.

Now, however, we have been notified that the policy covers us for one year only and we will receive no further benefits.

We earnestly hope you can be of some help. — J. R., Pomona.

On the basis of documentation you included with your letter, we addressed our inquiry to Bond Insurance Agency of Los Angeles.

Lee Buckner, president, reviewed the history of your policy.

He said that on July 1, 1968, a Continental Casualty Insurance Co. policy was issued to you.

The term of benefits was five years for insured persons under 60 and two years for those over 60.

On June 1, 1971, the liability under this policy was assumed by American Bankers Life Assurance Co. of Miami, Fla. This policy was reissued by the American Bankers Life Insurance Co. Oct. 1, 1972.

A copy of the policy and a letter explaining the benefits granted under the reissued policy were forwarded to you in October 1972, Buckner said. He stated that at that time benefits were reduced to two years for insured persons under 50 and one year for those over 50.

On June 1, 1973, liability under the policy was assumed by Founders Life Insurance Co., this time apparently without further change in terms.

Buckner included a copy of the American Bankers Life Assurance Co. policy showing the terms of disability coverage at age 50 or over.

We regretfully sent you a copy of Buckner's letter and the copy of the policy.

Ann Landers

Parents to blame, not children

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing to comment on the letter from "Upstate, N.Y." complaining about today's children being poorly behaved. Your reply suggested he was out of line, but my experiences and feelings concur with his completely.

I could tell stories you wouldn't believe — including one about a 10-year-old boy who ran stark naked through each and every dinner party his parents had.

The mother of this nutty kid would respond to the gasps and arched eyebrows with, "I hope no one here is offended by the sight of a child's beautiful body."

Then there was a neighbor who had the nerve to come over here and holler at me for telling his children not to scream and rough-house in our yard. He said it was a free country and they could play anywhere they liked, and besides, our yard was nicer to play in than theirs — more grass.

When I married nine years ago I assumed we'd have children, but we've been completely turned off by what we've seen. — Old Witch, Age 30

Dear Witch: If you'd let a 10-year-old streaker and a loony father deprive you of the joy of having a family, then YOU'RE nutty.

Can't you see it's the parents who are to blame, not the children? Wake up and smell the coffee, honey.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is for the person whose weirdo father kept getting married a lot. She was afraid she might end up with six sets of in-laws.

Here is what an Internal Revenue Service publication says: "Once the relationship of father-in-law, mother-in-law, son or daughter-in-law, sister or brother-in-law, has been established by marriage, they will not be terminated by death or divorce."

So, please tell the worried lady that she may well end up with a longer wedding list than she had planned.

Since the original letter concerning this matter was signed, "Who's Who?" please sign mine — Who Cares?

Dear W.C.: A lot of people care but I'm glad you wrote because the I.R.S. is one thing and who you invite to a wedding is something else again.

I see no reason to invite several sets of relatives by a variety of marriages unless there is some emotional attachment. The way this gal's father is behaving, she'd have to include the immediate world.

Dear Ann Landers: School will be starting next month and I hope you will say something to boys — ages 15 and 16. They are the worst.

Their manners are awful. They treat us girls like we were guys — pushing and shoving us around when we try to get on the bus.

There's this girl Mitzi who has her leg in a cast and is on crutches. Do you think one boy on the bus had the decency to give her a seat? Forget it. A GIRL finally let her sit down.

All the kids read your column. In fact it's the main topic during lunch period, so please say something. — Ashamed To Print My Town

Dear Ashamed: These guys need to grow up. And they will, in time, I promise you. Soon they'll discover that girls aren't just soft boys. Suddenly they'll become civilized — and even thoughtful and considerate. Just you wait and see.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism — Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Divorce rate now in front

Even though the 17-page pamphlet is innocuously titled "Some Recent Changes in American Families" it portends some drastic, perhaps even revolutionary alterations in the way we are now living and the way we will live 10, 20, even 50 years from now.

The information comes from the Population Division, Bureau of the Census, and, as we will see when the numbers are translated into human terms, they spell SOCIAL CHANGE.

It turns out that marriage is at an all-time low while divorce is at an all-time high — the rate of divorce this past year exceeding the rate of marriage. A large proportion of the marriages in 1974 were remarriages. Four out of five of those who divorce eventually remarry. This makes the number of first-time marriages in 1974 even lower.

One of the reasons marriages are going down is that young women are postponing marriage. In fact, 40 per cent of the women between the ages of 20 and 24 (the so-called) "prime time" for getting married) are single!

There are some very good reasons for this: women's enrollment in college has doubled, and women, for the first time, are getting an almost even chance at good jobs. And like their male counterparts, those in college or starting off at a good job may feel that marriage might interfere with their upward climb.

The figures also indicate that the more education a woman receives, the less likely she is to get married. The author of the study, demographer Paul C. Glick, suspects there are significant numbers of men who "still hesitate to marry a woman who expects to be a partner in an egalitarian marriage — or a woman who might be a serious competitor for the role of chief breadwinner or 'head of the household'."

That may explain the low marriage rate.

But why is the divorce rate in the United States higher than last year? Higher here than in any other nation in the world?

For men, it turns out that those with the greatest education and financial resources have the lowest divorce rate, and men with the lowest socio-economic background have the highest.

Once those college-educated women marry, the ones with four years of college have the least chance of getting divorced; but women with five years of college or more have the highest divorce rate.

Women with higher education are getting better paying jobs, which in turn allows them to become financially independent of their husbands; "no-fault" divorce and free legal aid have made divorce less costly; a relaxation in society's attitude toward divorce has removed the stigma of the broken marriage.

More and more women are saying "NO!" to the old "top dog/bottom dog" marital relationship. The 1844 "Fifty-four Forty or Fight" slogan has been replaced these days by the matrimonial ultimatum "Fifty-fifty or Split!" Women's liberation or equal rights for women — whatever one calls it, is having a profound effect upon matrimony, either ending it, or not even beginning it.

Will this trend of fewer marriages and more divorces continue? More than likely it will. Will it mean that, say, by the year 2000 nobody will be married? Not likely because the attitudes and expectations of men and women who get married in the year 2000 will be much different.

By that time men, brought up in a less sexist society may realize that they have more to gain than lose by treating women as equals — and once the idea comes of age men and women may be more comfortable with sharing, truly sharing a life together.

Dr. Lamb

Food, drink don't cause gout

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could you tell me what causes gout and what to do for it? The doctor said I had gout in my feet. The balls of both feet are sore and sometimes my toes burn and seem to draw as if I had cramps in them. It is very painful.

DEAR READER — Gout is not caused by eating rich foods and drinking. It is caused by an overproduction of uric acid by your own body.

What is uric acid? It is closely related to proteins and is a byproduct of the formation of new body cells. When you are generating that enormous number of new, red blood cells, three million every second, you are also forming uric acid. It is formed in the process of manufacturing the important nucleic acid DNA in the nucleus of the cell. Anything that stimulates the breakdown of cells or stimulates their growth will increase the production of DNA.

It follows that a person on one of those fad diets that promises massive sudden weight loss may have a sudden acute attack of gout. The diet leads to breakdown of muscle cells and release of excess quantities of uric acid.

The uric acid forms a salt (sodium urate) that can form crystals and induce a complicated process in the joints that results in red hot, painful, swollen joints. This is commonly the big toe, but other joints may be involved.

Deposits of the uric acid salt in the joints lead to a form of arthritis, called simple gouty arthritis. It can lead to a slow destruction and deformity of the joints involved.

While diet is helpful in treatment of gout, it is not as important as controlling the overproduction of uric acid by our own body cells. The diet should be one, though, that gradually decreases excess obesity without any crash effort that may cause an acute attack as I mentioned.

You can eat a diet completely free of uric acid and still have high uric acid levels and gout. A purine-free diet used to be the big thing because purines (from tissue cells and particularly organ meats) are used in the formation of uric acid. However, the body can manufactur lots of uric acid on a diet completely free of purines. A purine-free diet will only lower the uric acid level slightly. That is why medicines are used mostly today rather than trying to control the problem with diet alone.

There are medicines to block the formation of uric acid in your cells, others to help you eliminate excess uric acid through the kidneys and still others to control the acute pain of a sudden, painful gout attack.

For more information on the treatment and how to live with gout write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York NY 10019, send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents and ask for The Health Letter number 2-3, Gout, Uric Acid.

As a woman you will be interested to know that men are much more prone to gout than women. Many women who have the high uric acid levels never develop gout. There seems to be an hereditary tendency to developing gout, and it has often afflicted the famous and the geniuses or near geniuses, so you are in good company.

Some years back some unknown expert invented the phrase, "Rectify the count." You rectify the count by conceding a trick in order to develop a squeeze later. Needless to say, you can't afford to rectify the count when you are in a grand slam.

South looks over dummy and counts to 11 top-card winners. He notes that the 12th winner will be there if either clubs or hearts break nicely. Suppose neither suit breaks?

If each opponent controls one, South is going to pay off. If one opponent must try to guard both South can squeeze him, but he must go through the preliminary of rectifying the count.

How does he do this? At trick two he leads a low heart from either hand and ducks in the other.

After this start he wins the return and cashes his spades and diamonds to come down to a six-card ending. Dummy holds two hearts and four clubs, South three hearts and three clubs and East holds his head in agony.

He is forced to jettison either a heart or a club. A heart discard establishes South's small heart, a club discard makes dummy's fourth club good

Ask the Jacobys

A Delaware reader wants to know what we bid with:

♠ 7 5 4 3 ♥ A Q 5 ♦ A Q ♣ A J 9

after partner responds with a Stayman two clubs to our notrump opening bid.

The answer is that we bid two diamonds and conceal our four-card suit. If later on it turns out that we made the wrong decision we can always avoid real trouble with partner by explaining that we had a spade mixed in among our clubs.

Should cows wear bras? Hold on, maybe that's not such a ridiculous query. An outfit called the Franksville Specialty Company recently started to manufacture bras for dairy stock. It's not a moral matter. Idea is to keep milk production high by preventing injuries to udders.

POLLSTERS

Q. "Is it a fact that Alfred M. Landon actually beat Franklin D. Roosevelt in a magazine poll before Roosevelt won his landslide in 1936?"

A. That's right. Pollsters mailed out postcards only to car owners and telephone subscribers, the well-to-do. In those early 1930s, fewer than two out of five families had phones, fewer than three out of five had cars.

FIRECRACKERS, rockets and sparklers are expected to be in big demand during the 1976 bicentennial celebration. Such big demand that the American suppliers don't think they can produce enough of same. They say Communist China will be the chief seller, probably. For an estimated $6-million profit.

That one natural food most widely claimed throughout history to be an aphrodisiac is honey.

REPORT IS that a number of married couples are getting divorced each December only to remarry the following January. It's a tax gimmick. A wrinkle in the 1972 Tax Reform Act permits unmarried couples living together to pay less money than married couples, whether they file joint or separate returns. Wait, I'm not talking about small-change savings. Some couples can cut their taxes by several thousand dollars in this manner. The IRS says it's perfectly legal.

New Zealand's flightless, chicken-size kiwis are unique in that their nostrils are at the tips of their beaks. No other bird is so constructed.

Iceland is a nation of 100 per cent literacy. The per capita publications of new books is almost 20 per cent greater than in the United States.

The dog in dogwood is really short for "dagger." In early days Europeans found they could fashion tough dogwood timber into a good pointed knife called a "dag." The weapon gave its name to the trees.

The music of Scotland isn't all bagpipes. In the Shetland Islands, for example, the pipes are seldom heard but there's hardly a house without a fiddle.

A sense of humor

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My boyfriend and I have been thinking of getting married this fall because we both want children and because we're in love. Neither of us digs the idea of having children out of wedlock because we don't think it's fair to them, but, naturally we both have a lot of hangups about marriage. I mean, we both know that we'll have to give up a lot to make it work and we're both kind of selfish.

Last week, at a party we were fooling around with some game that was supposed to delve into what a person thinks is most important. I put humor at the top of a list of ten items and my boyfriend put it at the bottom. This started us thinking to what degree it was important to each of us and whether humor was needed in a marriage. We both have a sense of humor but each of us has a very different kind. How important is this? — D.B.

Dear D.B.: A sense of humor can save a lot of situations and make difficult times much easier to take.

Dr. Martin Grotjahn, clinical professor of psychiatry at the University of Southern California, feels humor always helps make marriage easier and more successful. "Marriage and love," he says, are alive as long as the partners still know how to laugh together."

Now, it isn't so important that you both have exactly the same type of humor; it's probably better that you don't. Your different senses of humor may complement each other. Humor helps people release their tensions and feelings of aggression. The wife who can share a joke or laugh at her own, or her husband's mistakes, is much less likely to throw a frying pan across the room than is the woman who has no sense of humor, or who has lost it.

A person can appreciate a joke and not necessarily be able to create one himself. Apparently, the ability to produce wit is not always closely related to appreciation of it.

You might be interested in knowing that children, too, appreciate humor and are much more apt to listen and accept advice if it is given in a humorous way. Children are also better able to retain what they learn when it is taught in this manner than when taught in a dry, authoritarian way.

Often, those who don't have a sense of humor or who are unable to laugh are repressed people. Psychologists at the University of Massachusetts found that persons who make the best scores on sense-of-humor tests have the best insight into their own personalities, and are more aware of their anxieties, their innermost feelings and desires. People with a sense of humor are also much happier and tend to be generally better adjusted than those without humor.

The fact that both you and your boyfriend are aware that you will have to share and make adjustments to each other if you marry indicates not only that you've given serious thought to some of the problems, but that you are approaching your marriage with maturity, rather than just romanticism. This too, will be an enormous help in making your marriage successful and rewarding.

Stress kills

Hard work never killed anyone, but failure to deal with stress can, according to the current issue of Reader's Digest. Dr. Harry Johnson, chairman of the medical board at the Life Extension Institute, points out that tension "stems from within the person and not from without. Jobs are never tense; people are."

Dodger fans like their beach balls

A big night for Pomona batboy

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — It was an exciting night at Dodger Stadium.

- Don Sutton pitched his 40th career shutout to tie the great Sandy Koufax for second place on the Dodgers' all-time list to rank behind Don Drysdale's 49 in blanking the Atlanta Braves, 5-0, Tuesday night.
- Sutton also picked up his 15th victory — the most for a National League pitcher — in closing in on his first 20-win season.
- Jimmy Wynn scored his 1,000th career run in the sixth inning when he belted Phil Niekro's first pitch into the leftfield seats for his 16th home run of the season.
- Manny Mota tied Dave Philley for fifth place on the all-time pinch-hit list (93) when he broke the game open with a bases-loaded single in the eighth inning.
- For the first time in two weeks, the Dodgers have won two games in a row. It doesn't help catch the runaway Cincinnati Reds but the second-place Dodgers now enjoy a 2½ game lead over San Francisco.
- The crowd of 24,452 customers entertained themselves by playing volleyball in the stands with beach balls. Once the first ball was taken away by the security people, fans bought more at the concession stands. At one time, there were at least seven different balls being bounced around while the game was forgotten.

However, nothing can top the excitement shown by 13-year-old Tony Steckel, the Progress Bulletin's honorary batboy.

After all, how many Pomonans can say Wynn dedicated a home run to him.

"After Jimmy hit it and came back to the dugout, he said he had dedicated it to me," Tony said.

Here are some of Tony's other thoughts after his big night.

What he did during the game — "I guess I just did a good job. I was in charge of putting the batting helmets away and also giving the players their bats as they went out to the on-deck circle."

Most embarrassing moment — "Having to go out before the game and tip my hat to the crowd."

His favorite Dodger — "They were all nice to me. But I like Steve Garvey the most. He showed me around the clubhouse and posed for photos with me."

Walter Alston's views — "He told me I did a good job. During the game, he would explain the plays. He explained why he was taking Bill Russell out for Mota."

Most exciting play — "Wynn's homer. I also got real excited when Mota got his pinch-hit."

Sutton's pitching — "Red Adams (pitching coach) sat next to me during the game and talked to me afterward He said Sutton pitched a good game. The Dodgers were never talking about taking him out. They said he lost his concentration at one point when the people in the stands were playing with the beach balls."

Reaction to the beach balls — "The players enjoyed it. They had about six of the balls in the dughout. Some of the coaches thought it was stupid for the fans to be playing with them."

Did all the Dodgers autograph his baseball? — "Yes, they all signed. Wynn said if I wanted anything else in the future, just to ask him."

Did even Mike Marshall sign? — "Yes."

What did Marshall say? "He said hi."

Did Alston tell you about the squeeze play? "He told me they were going to do it."

They must have trusted you not to tell the Braves — "I wouldn't have told them."

Reactions to a great night —"I'm pretty tired. That was a long night. But I had a VERY, VERY good time."

Sutton had no problem stopping the Braves on five singles as the Atlantans were stopped cold.

"I set a goal earlier this year that I would like to win four games a month," Sutton explained. "I got delayed a little but to have 15 wins at this time of the season is just great. Of course, being in second place has taken something out of it."

Did the noise with the bach balls bother him?

"The noise reminded me of what has happened on some of the pitches I've thrown. I was sitting in the dugout when it started. The crowd cheered and cheered and I knew we hadn't scored that many runs."

The Dodgers scored in the first inning when Billy Buckner doubled, stole third and came home on Lee Lacy's grounder. Wynn made it 2-0 in the sixth with his homer.

L.A. broke it open in the eighth with three runs. After Mota knocked in the first two, Steve Yeager scored on Sutton's squeeze bunt.

DODGER DATA — Andy Messersmith (13-10) will pitch on his 30th birthday tonight against Atlanta's John "Blue Moon" Odom (1-4) in the stand finale. The Dodgers leave Thursday on a two-week tour to New York, Philadelphia, Montreal and Chicago.

Maury Wills has joined the lineup for the annual Oldtimers Game on Sunday, August 24.

Davey Lopes sat out Tuesday's game because of a jammed thumb on his ring finger.

Crandall's job is safe

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Del Crandall's job as manager of the Milwaukee Brewers "is as secure as any other manager in major league baseball and more secure than most," Brewers President Bud Selig said Monday.

The Milwaukee Sentinel reported last week that top Brewers officials had huddled on Crandall's future following Milwaukee's loss of a doubleheader at Boston.

The Brewers were only 4½ games out of first place in the American Leauge East at the All-Star break last month but they've been in a slump since then and slipped to 13½ games back following Monday night's 2-1 loss to New York.

Crandall, who took over as the Brewers manager during the 1972 season, has long been a favorite with the Milwaukee fans, dating back to his days as a catcher with the old Milwaukee Braves.

Moret hurt in accident

NORTH STONINGTON, Conn. (AP) — Rogelio Moret, 26, a pitcher for the Boston Red Sox, was injured slightly Tuesday when a tractor-trailer truck slammed into the rear of his car and sped off, state police said.

Under a dense blanket of fog, Moret stopped his eastbound car in the left lane of Interstate 95 when the truck struck his car about 4:30 a.m., troopers said.

Moret was taken to Lawrence Memorial Hospital in New London, Conn., where he was treated for head injuries and released, officials said.

SPARRING MATE

Randy Shields (R) works out with his regular spar mate — his father, Sonny. They have a ring in their backyard in North Hollywood. Shields will fight Tury Pineda on Aug. 23.

Things going against Randy Shields

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Except for the fact that he worries about getting flattened every time he steps into the ring, and doesn't like fighting in his home town because of the boos, Randy Shields is just like any other boxer.

At 19, Shields is rated No. 11 in the featherweight class by the World Boxing Council. If he were a resident of a backwoods town of 1,500, he could be mayor for the asking.

But things go against him; he fights in a weight classification dominated by Latin Americans and he fights in a city with a huge Mexican-American population.

"Every time I step into the ring here, I expect to get booed," said the sandy-haired lad. "I guess I'm always the underdog, because they look at me and I'm white."

Despite Randy's 25-0 record as a professional and his impressive style, he'll be the underdog Saturday night, Aug. 23, when he faces his toughest test. Veteran Tury Pineda of Guadalajara, Mexico, carries a 25-5 record into the bout at the Olympic Auditorium.

Unlike most other fighters, who boast, "I'm the greatest," Shields shocks even his father, Sonny, who is also Randy's sparring partner, manager, ticket salesman and cheerleader.

"He's always had a lot of confidence in himself," says Sonny, "but he's very realistic, too."

Randy explains:

"I always have a negative thought when I get into the ring. I worry about being knocked down. I try to picture myself lying flat on my back, looking up at the lights, with that guy standing above me.

"I keep that picture in my mind, and I don't want it to happen, so I fight harder. I have that little fear. I think most fighters are dumb because they try to psych themselves up. That means they really don't think they're good enough, down deep, and have to get themselves mentally ready. I'm always ready mentally because I know there's a chance I could lose."

Sonny, 39, was once a lightweight himself. "He was 19-3, under his real name," said Randy, "but he also used a bunch of other names."

Father and son spar spiritedly in a backyard ring, do roadwork together and even have another profession together. They are both stuntmen in the movies.

"Yeah, I get hit by cars going 35 miles an hour; I jump off trains goin' 55 and I take falls," says Sonny matter-of-factly. "The big thing is just having the nerve to think about it, getting ready to do it. There's no dry-runs, no practice. You just do it."

Amazingly, he's never had a broken bone because of the stuntwork, and says he feels it's easier, in some ways, than the fight game. That's why he's trying to get Randy into it.

"I'll be a fighter until I start to hate it," says Randy. "Right now, I still like it. I just wish there weren't so many people booing . . ."

Against Pineda, Shields will be facing a Mexican foe for the 18th time. "He'll come up from the border with busloads of Mexicans and they'll holler for him and boo me."

Randy says he tries not to think about the boos, "but I hear them, and it's kind of upsetting."

Shields got into boxing very early, partly because of his father was always training. "It was just natural for me to start," says the younger Shields. "I had always enjoyed it and, well I just did it. I mean, it was just there. Just like that chair is there, so you sit in it."

Sonny says, "From the time he was five. I knew he was going to be a fighter. Just the way he carried himself. He started to fight amateur when he was 13 and he fought, oh, maybe 100 times."

"Yeah," said Randy, "there'd be weeks when I'd fight two, three times. But when I was 15 I felt a change. Things started to come together. You know, one day you can't throw a left hook properly and the next day it just feels right."

Shields is a speed boxer. "He'll tickle you to death," said one boxing veteran. "I use my quickness," said Randy.

Pineda, on the other hand, is a power puncher. "I'll admit he can tear your head off with either fist," said Randy. "I'll just keep him so busy he won't get a chance to unload." A week ago, Sonny offered Pineda a chance to extend their scheduled 10-round fight to 12 rounds, feeling Randy's stamina and conditioning would win easily. Pineda said no.

The younger Shields is a part-time student at Valley College, "but I'm not planning on becoming a lawyer or doctor. I want to be able to manage my money properly and do well in business, in life. I want to go to college because it's good for me, not because of a degree."

The winner of the Shields-Pineda fight will likely get a shot at the World Boxing Council crown held by Japan's Guts Ishimatsu. Pineda has twice fought and lost to the Japansee champion.

A title shot would come in about three months.

"He's ready," said Sonny, point to Randy, and Randy merely blushed.

Tampa job is McKay's

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — If John McKay wants to coach the Tampa Bay Buccaneers when they enter the National Football League next year, the job is his.

That's what Hugh Culverhouse, Jacksonville attorney who owns the Bucs, said Monday.

"I have been most impressed with John," Culverhouse said. "We want a coach who also is a teacher, and one who's a winner. John fits that."

Injury delays fight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The scheduled Aug. 16 lightweight fight between Randy Shields of Los Angeles and Tury Pineda of Guadalajara, Mexico, was pushed back one week Tuesday by promoter Eileen Eaton.

Mrs. Eaton said Pineda, who is training in Gilman Hot Springs east of here, sustained a cut over his left eye in a sparring session and was granted a one week delay by the State Athletic Commission. The fight was rescheduled for 8 p.m. Aug. 23.

Pineda, 25-5, the No. 2-rated lightweight contender by the World Boxing Council, is rated a 9-5 favorite over Shields, 25-0, of North Hollywood, Calif.

Remy, Rivers help Halos split twinbill

CHICAGO (AP)—Rookie Jerry Remy drove in four runs with a pair of singles and scored twice and Mickey Rivers hammered out four hits to give the California Angels a 10-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox and a split of their doubleheader Tuesday night.

Chicago won the nightcap 4-1.

"That puts us over our toughest stretch of the season," sighed Chicago Manager Chuck Tanner. "It would have been easy to quit but the guys didn't; they battled back and avoided what could have been disaster."

The White Sox, who had lost successive doubleheaders in Minnesota Saturday and Sunday, were playing their third twin bill in four days and on the verge of losing it.

However, a four-run rally in the sixth inning of the nightcap gave them the victory with Jesse Jefferson twirling a four-hitter but needing ninth-inning help from Rich Gossage.

With two outs in the ninth, Jefferson gave up a single to Dave Chalk and two of his nine walks to load the bases. Gossage came in to retire Morris Nettles and earn his 17th save of the season.

The Sox loaded the bases on a pair of walks surrounding a double by Deron Johnson as starter Bill Singer, 6-11, departed. Don Kirkwood walked Jerry Hariston to force in the tying run and Bucky Dent put the Sox ahead with a sacrifice fly before Pete Varney hammered a clinching two-run double.

The first game was all California with Remy and Rivers providing the heroics.

The Angels piled up eight runs in the first three innings as Ed Figueroa coasted to his ninth victory against eight losses. Figueroa, however, was unable to finish because of wildness and departed in favor of Jim Brewer after loading the bases with none out in the ninth.

California Manager Dick Williams was discussing Remy, his rookie second baseman who is enjoying an excellent campaign and went into the doubleheader with a .271 average including 31 stolen bases.

Remy looked so good that by the June 15 trading deadline, the Angels swapped Denny Doyle to the Boston Red Sox.

"If it weren't for Fred Lynn of Boston, Remy would be the rookie of the year," said Williams, who then mused, "We kept him and traded the guy who might break Joe Dimaggio's streak."

Williams was then informed that Doyle's 22-game hitting streak had been halted by Jim Palmer of Baltimore.

"Too bad," said Williams, who was probably serious. Although Doyle supposedly went in a cash deal, it is suspected that the Angels will get a player later whose value will depend on the type of season Doyle has.

Remy is very happy with the way things have turned out.

"The season has been much better than I expected," said the native of Fall Rivers, Mass. "I'd like to hit .300 but .280 also would be nice. I'd like to have 40 stolen bases or better."

The Sox and Angels tangle again tonight in the fourth of the five-game series. Jim Kaat will be seeking his 16th victory for Chicago against Dick Lange, 4-4. The series winds up with an afternoon game Thursday.

Firestone is Player's adversary

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The familiar "Watch Out for Jack Nicklaus" chant reverberated over the Firestone Country Club today on the eve of the 57th PGA Golf Championship, but Gary Player had his hearing aid turned off.

"I never go into a tournament thinking this man or that man is the man to beat," the gritty little South African said. "When I first took up the game I was taught that the course and not the individual is the adversary.

"The course is the monster. The course is the villain. My job is to whip the course. I try to concentrate on that. I don't look over my shoulder at anybody."

Winner of the event twice with a 10-year gap—1962 and 1972—as part of his cache of 24 national championships, Player is one of the favorites in the field of 139 teeing off Thursday over the 7,180-yard, par-70 course.

Nicklaus is the No. 1 favorite at 6-1, followed by Lee Trevino and Johnny Miller at 8-1; Player, Tom Weiskopf and Tom Watson at 10-1, and Gene Littler, Hale Irwin and host pro Bobby Nichols 12-1.

"Of course, if you pinned me down," Player added, softening his original statement somewhat, "and asked me who I pick outside of myself—a man must always figure he's going to win—I would follow the expected line.

"I would have to say Nicklaus. He has to be the choice because of his strength, hitting power and the best brain in the game.

"I have great respect for both Nicklaus and Lee Trevino. Trevino can't be overlooked because he drives the ball so straight and is so good around the greens."

As for his No. 1 antagonist, this sprawling layout which has been the regular site of the annual World Series, Player called it "one of the most difficult tests in golf.

"It is long, it is tough. There's a lot of heavy rough and the greens are generally small. It will take a good player in full control of his game to win here."

This hasn't been a good year for the 38-year-old perfectionist from Johannesburg, following a banner 1974 season in which he won the Masters and British Open and finished in the top 10 in the U.S. Open and PGA.

"I have no excuses," he said. "I went into the Masters after being away from the tour for 2½ months. I had two days practice before the U.S. Open and played only 16 holes before the British.

"I've played like a bum in the majors. But my game feels as if it is coming around. I hope it does this week."

Player acknowledged that his aim is to win more major championships than Nickalus, who has a total of 13 Big Four (Masters, U.S. and British Opens, PGA) crowns compared to Gary's eight.

"My chance might be better if I concentrated on the U.S. tour," Player said, "but you might say I have scattered my shots around the world."

He has, indeed. He's won seven Australian, nine South African and two Brazilian national championships besides his three British Opens, one U.. Open, two Masters and two PGAs.

"Too bad they don't count those," he said with a meaningful grin.

Rams make one change

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams announced Tuesday that the starters in Friday nights opening pre season game against Dallas would be the same as last year at 21 of 22 positions.

Lone exception is at offensive center, where veteran Rich Saul moves in for Ken Iman, who was traded to St. Louis.

Quarterback James Harris will call signals and Harold Jackson and Jack Snow will be at wide receiver.

LINDA MYERS

Poly hires Girl SID

The Cal Poly Athletic Department scored a first recently by hiring Linda Jo Myers as its new Sports Information Director.

Miss Myers is the first woman SID in the school's history and is also believed to be the first female SID ever among California Collegiate Athletic Association schools, of which Cal Poly is a member.

Miss Myers is taking over the position from Jim McConnell, who resigned the SID duties to assume a full-time staff writer job with the Progress Bulletin.

Although this will be her first SID job, Miss Myers is no stranger to the Bronco athletic department. She has been an assistant in the SID's office for the past four years while attending classes at Poly. She is currently a senior majoring in English.

"Linda has proved her capability during the past four years," noted Bronco Athletic Director Don Warhurst in announcing the appointment. "We are confident she will give the university the best possible sports coverage and we are happy she has accepted the position."

Myers, a 1971 graduate of Walnut High, assumed her SID duties last week at the local campus.

Phillies score 10 in first

By Associated Press

It was first and 10 for Philadelphia.

Unfortunately for the Chicago Cubs, it wasn't the Philadelphia Eagles they were playing, it was the Phillies. And the game was baseball.

Bill Bonham started Tuesday night's game for the Cubs. He never knew what hit him.

What hit him, in succession, was Dave Cash, Larry Bowa, Garry Maddox, Greg Luzinski, Jay Johnstone, Tommy Hutton and Mike Schmidt.

There was no call for unnecessary roughness. The only call was for reliever Ed Crosby, who might well have been cowering in the Cubs' bullpen.

Johnny Oates, Maddox and Johnstone proceeded to hit him, too, and when the first-inning carnage was complete, the Phillies had 10 hits—the first eight in a row—and 10 runs. The other eight innings were academic. Philadelphia waltzed to a 13-5 victory.

In the rest of the National League, Pittsburgh beat St. Louis 6-1, Los Angeles shut out Atlanta 5-0, Cincinnati defeated San Francisco 6-3, San Diego edged Houston 6-5 in 10 innings and, in a twi-night doubleheader, Montreal blanked New York twice by 7-0 scores.

Maddox and Schmidt were the biggest guns in the Phillies' arsenal. After Cash and Bowa singled, Maddox unloaded his third home run of the season. Then Luzinski singled, Johnstone doubled and Hutton singled them both home.

Schmidt's two-run homer finally sent Bonham to the showers and brought up Oates, who promptly singled. Phils' pitcher Dick Ruthven, adding insult to embarrassment, bunted Oates to second. Cash, up for the second time, drew a walk and, with two away, Maddox got his fourth RBI of the inning with a single, Luzinski walked and Johnstone singled for the final two runs.

The Cubs tried to make a game of it with four runs in the third inning, three on a triple by Rick Monday, but Schmidt put an end to their hopes with another two-run homer in the fifth.

Schmidt's two homers were no surprise. After all, he's got 23 of them this year. But Maddox' hitting delighted Manager Danny Ozark.

Maddox was hitting only .195, as a utility player for San Francisco before the Phils acquired him in an early-season trade that sent Willie Montanez to the Giants. A few weeks after Maddox arrived, he broke his knee. Since coming back barely a month ago, though, he's hit .368 and has raised his average 90 points to .285.

"This is the Maddox I remembered, the guy we traded for," said Ozark. "I remember when the Giants had Bobby Bonds, Gary Matthews and Maddox. I called them three Secretariats. Now we've got one of 'em."

Pirates 6, Cards 1

Despite the offensive explosion, the Phils failed to cut into Pittsburgh's 4½-game lead in the East Division. Richie Zisk, Duffy Dyer and Bill Robinson made sure of that, driving in two runs apiece to beat St. Louis.

Dyer and Robinson each had two-run triples while Zisk divided his work with a double and a homer to back Jim Rooker's seven-hitter.

Reds 6, Giants 3

Cesar Geronimo hit a tie-breaking single in the seventh inning and kicked in with an RBI single in a two-run eighth to beat the Giants and keep Cincinnati's Big Red Machine rolling.

Padres 6, Astros 5

It was a rolling ball that knocked Houston off the tracks against the Padres. Bobby Tolan singled with two out in the 10th and moved to second on a balk before Fred Kendall hit a roller to shortstop Jerry Davanon, who fumbled it to let Tolan score the winning run.

Expos 7-7, Mets 0-0

The Mets got a double dose of the blahs from Montreal's pitching staff and, for the sixth time in 10 twinbills this year, came out on the short end in both games.

Don Carrithers pitched a fivehitter in the first game, then Dennis Blair and Woodie Fryman teamed for one in the nightcap. Bob Bailey and Barry Foote homered in the opener and Pete Mackanin drove in two runs in the second game.

Jim Palmer halts Bosox

By The Associated Press

The Baltimore Orioles had the Boston Red Sox right in the hand of their Palmer.

"I can't pitch any better than that," said Jim Palmer after his gorgeous two-hitter led Baltimore to a 3-0 victory over Boston Tuesday night. "It was a blend of concentration, control and stuff."

The Baltimore ace was at the top of his form—because he was on top of the batters.

"I really got on top of the hitters tonight," said Palmer, whose major league-high 16th victory pulled Baltimore within 7½ games of the American League East leaders. "I got everything over the plate and made only a couple of bad pitches. I had both good control and good stuff. I also threw a lot of curves. I had to—those guys are fastball hitters."

Dave Duncan, who caught Palmer's beauty, assessed the performance as a masterpiece.

"I've never seen him with better control," said Duncan of Baltimore's Cy Young winner. "He had good control of all four pitches—fastball, curve, slider and changeup. You're not going to beat him when he pitches like that."

In the other American League games, the New York Yankees trimmed the Milwaukee Brewers 4-3; the Kansas City Royals turned back the Minnesota Twins 6-1; the Cleveland Indians whipped the Detroit Tigers 8-4; the Oakland A's beat the Texas Rangers 3-2 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the second, 15-2, and the California Angels trounced the Chicago White Sox 10-4 in the opener of their twin bill before dropping a 4-1 decision in the nightcap.

Palmer struck out eight and walked one to give the Orioles a sweep of their two-game series with the Red Sox. Palmer, 16-7, outduelled Luis Tiant, 13-11.

Palmer, a 29-year-old righthander, retired the first 12 Boston batters in order before walking Fred Lynn on a 3-1 pitch. Lynn was immediately erased on Jim Rice's doubleplay grounder but Carlton Fisk hit the next pitch off the wall in left-center for a double to break up the no-hit bid.

Rick Burleson doubled with one out in the ninth for Boston's other hit. Denny Doyle, whose hitting streak was snapped at 22 games, flied out to left to end the game.

Yankees 4, Brewers 3

Bobby Bonds' home run in the ninth inning carried Catfish Hunter and New York over Milwaukee. Bond's homer, his 22nd of the season but only his first since July 20, helped New York's premier right-hander improve his record to 15-10. Hunter scattered nine hits.

The Yankees gained a 3-3 tie with two runs in the seventh. After Chris Chambliss led off with his seventh homer, Ed Herrmann singled and came around to score on two infield outs and Bonds' infield single.

Royals 6, Twins 1

John Mayberry hit his third home run in as many games, a two-run shot during a four-run fourth inning, as Kansas City defeated Minnesota behind Al Fitzmorris' two-hitter.

Indians 8, Tigers 4

Rookie right-hander Eric Raich broke a personal threegame losing streak and Rico Carty drove in four runs, leading Cleveland over Detroit.

A's 3-2, Rangers 2-15

Dick Bosman and Rollie Fingers teamed for a two-hitter and Jim Holt hit a tie-breaking sacrifice fly in the fifth inning, giving Oakland its opening victory over Texas.

Roy Howell walloped two home runs, one of them a grand slam that highlighted an eight-run sixth, to lead Texas over Oakland in the second game.

U.S. upset by Mexico

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Mexican men's team has pulled a stunning upset, defeating the favored U.S. men 6-15, 15-2, 157, 9-15, 15-12 in the North, Central American and Caribbean zone volleyball championships.

The victory left Mexico and Cuba with 2-0 records and the United States at 1-1 in the five-team, round robin tournament which ends Friday. The U.S. and Cuba had been co favorites. The team with the best record goes to the 1976 Olympic games in Montreal.

The U.S. women's team defeated Canada 15-6, 15-7, 15-5 to boost its leading record to 3-0 in the women's division. The co-favored Cuban team is second a 2-0.

The Cuban women defeated the Dominican Republic, 15-1, 15-0 and 15-5 Tuesday.

In another match the Canadian men defeated Haiti, 15-8, 15-12, 15-11, 15-6.

Randy Jones, ace southpaw of the San Diego Padres, credits pitching coach Tom Morgan with helping him get more body action into his delivery.

Broncos gain Jeff Severson

The Denver Broncos will be taking one more player back home with them when they break camp at Cal Poly Friday.

The Broncs obtained defensive back Jeff Severson from the Houston Oilers Tuesday for an undisclosed draft choice. The 6-foot, 187-pound Severson is entering his fourth season in the NFL and played his college ball at Long Beach State.

Severson is expected to give Denver some depth in the defensive secondary the Broncos lost when Clarence Ellis was shelved with an injury last week.

Coach John Ralston also announced Tuesday that quarterback John Hufnagel would get the starting nod in Saturday night's preseason opener against the Baltimore Colts at Denver.

Boxing dead in San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Weekly boxing is dead at the San Diego Coliseum as a result of high operating costs, matchmaker Mickey Davies said Tuesday.

The Hughes Television Network recently carried three of the Friday night cards and Davies said "we still have our fingers crossed" that a future contract with Hughes can be worked out.

PPA gains L.L. finals

Shane Turner and Gabe Rodriguez led Pomona Police Association (Southwest) to a 5-0 whitewashing of Pomona Optimist Club (American) in Tuesday night's action in the Pomona City Little League Tournament.

Thursday's game
PPA-Southwest vs. Park Ave. Hospital at Montvue Park North Field, 5:30 p.m.

In the game played at Montvue Park, Pomona, PPA scored what turned out to be the winning run in the first frame.

Turner, who was PPA's starting pitcher, singled and went to second on a stolen base. He scored on the catcher's error and a wild pitch.

PPA held that slim lead into the sixth, when they added four runs to help insure the victory. In that inning, Rodriguez tripled home Turner and Emilo Ceballos. Jeff Byrum then laid down a bunt and third baseman David Clark elected to hold Rodriguez to third. Byrum went all the way to second on the play.

A wild pitch then scored Rodriguez, with Byrum moving to third. He scored as the ball squirted past the catcher Joe Czimbal, who recovered it and tossed it to pitcher Vince Caberea covering home. However, Caberea dropped the ball as Byrum slid in with PPA's final tally.

Turner and Rodriguez combined for a three-hitter, and each held Optimist Club scoreless for three innings. Optimist, however did squander an opportunity to get on the scoreboard in the second inning.

Paul Kogat drove a wouldbe double into right-center field. However, Kogat was called out on an appeal play for missing first base. Then with two away, Czimbal singled and went to second after John Kanceer walked.

Optimist's pitcher Vince Caberea went the distance, allowing five runs on four hits, while striking out 11.

PPA will now advance to the championship game against Pomona American Little League's Park Ave. Hospital, on Thursday at 5:30 p.m. The game will be played at Montvue Park.

S.D. eliminated from tourney

A hard-hitting Northridge club eliminated the San Dimas Greens from Thorobred championship play Tuesday night by taking a 4-2 decision from the locals in a game played at Memorial Park in Azusa.

The win gave Northridge the Thorobred Regional crown and advanced them to the Thorobred West Coast playoffs, slated to begin Saturday at Evans Park in Riverside.

San Dimas hurler Bob Cochran surrendered two runs in the first inning and the Greens could never overcome that deficit.

Coach Jack Weeks' team did rally to within one on Bob Dominick's solo homer over the centerfield fence in the last of the fifth, but Northridge struck for two more tallies in the top of the seventh to nail down the win.

Northridge hurler Dave Sites fanned seven and walked three in posting the win. The only other S.D. score came in the final inning on Gary Oddi's homer with no one aboard. Sites finished with a four-hitter.

The loss completes San Dimas' season with a 27-7 ledger.

L.V. golfer 2 back in tourney

SAN FRANCISCO — Nineteen-year-old Bill Sander of Seattle shot a three-under 68 Tuesday on the Olympic Club's Lake Course to take a two-stroke first round lead in the ninth Pacific Coast Amateur Championship.

La Verne's Jim Porter, a recent UCLA graduate, was the only other golfer among the 84 entrants to break par Tuesday, posting a 35-35—70.

Sander made only one bogey in his round over the 6,748-yard course which has been used twice for U.S. Open tournaments. He had four birdies on the front nine, nothing but pars coming in.

The field for the 72-hole event will be cut to the low 48 golfers after today's second round.

Two others in the field shot even par 71s to share third place. John Fought of Toulatin, Ore., and Brian Gaddy of Arcadia, Calif. matched par with 71.s

New club started for girls

A new track and field club for girls in the Chino, Montclair, Upland, Ontario and adjoining areas is being organized.

Tryouts will be held Saturday beginning at 9 a.m. at the Montclair High track. Girls interested in track, field and cross country can tryout in six age divisions determined by their age on January 1 this year.

The age divisions are: nine and under, 10-11, 12-13, 14-15, 16-18 and 19 and older.

The tryouts will be conducted by former members of the Southern California Cheetahs girls track club.

Girls who would like to join the new track club, but are unable to attend Saturday's tryouts may call Jim Allen at 626-8054 to arrange to try out at another time.

Chaffey goes to Olympics

The Chaffey Aquatics Association will be sending its AAU swim team to the Junior Olympics at Long Beach's Belmont Plaza the next two weekends.

Chaffey's novice team is preparing for the Cal Novice Championship at El Monte on Sept. 11-14.

The Chaffey team recently won the Southern California Aquatics Association championship at the SCAA meet held at Ontario High.

More than 1,500 swimmers from 28 different teams participated in the meet.

Chaffey earned 535 points followed by Arcadia at 391 and Surfside at 380.

Three Chaffey swimmers set SCAA and pool records in the meet.

Mike Grabowski, 12, broke the mark in the 200 free (2:00.2) and 100 free (1:04.8). Jim Moore, 15, set his record in the 200 at 1:47.7 while Karen Kostoff, 12, sets hers in the 100 at 58.7.

Chaffey's 11-12 medley relay team also set a record in the 200 with a time of 2:09.3. Members of the team are Jill Bringhman, Kostoff, Sharon Gray and Karla Ann.

Chacon rehires manager

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bobby Chacon, who had heard the music, was afraid he might never hear it again.

So Tuesday it was reported that Chacon had rehired Joe Ponce, the manager Chacon fired before he lost his world featherweight title to Ruben Olivares by knockout in June.

"I can see the errors I have made in both my training and my dieting habits," said Chacon, 23. "Now I need him. I don't want to blow my future like so many young fighters have.

"I am willing to sacrifice, something I haven't done for two years. I know Joe is stern. But that's what I need. I have proven that I can't push myself in training or with dieting."

Chacon sat in his Sylmar, Calif., home with Ponce at their first face-to-face meeting since Ponce was fired in a bitter dispute in January.

Still, Ponce bore scars from the past.

"It sounds good now," he said. "He talks nice. I hope he means it."

The story was reported Tuesday in the Los Angeles Herald Examiner.

Chacon reached the World Boxing Council championship in a little over two years under Ponce's tutelage. With a 25-1 record, he was on top of the world.

Then he decided he did not like Ponce's methods and fired Ponce to become his own manager.

Chacon knocked out Paperlo Estrada in two rounds in his first title defense. But he had trouble making the 126-pound weight for his second defense against Olivares and looked listless getting knocked out in two rounds.

The California State Athletic Commission fined him $2,500 and suspended him through Sept. 4. The fine was later rescinded.

Ponce said he would try to line up several matches for Chacon out of the country, starting in October. He said their goal would be another match with Olivares for the WBC featherweight title.

Baja tour for Little Leaguers

Four young valley baseball players will be among 15 from all over Southern California to visit La Paz in Baja California late this month to play in a tournament which is part of the International Boys Athletic Association goodwill program.

Tommy Davis and Roger Kling of Diamond Bar, Mike Alexander of San Dimas and Dwayne O'Neil of Rowland Heights were selected for the team based on their Little League playing ability and exemplary sportsmanship, according to Jack Cole, who is one of five coaches of the all-star team.

The boys and their coaches will leave for La Paz by chartered bus Aug. 20 and return to the valley, Aug. 26. The team will be accompanied by a number of parents.

This is the ninth year of the goodwill tour involving 12-year-old baseball players from the Southern California area.

The International Boys Athletic Association funds the summer baseball tour with Christmas tree sales and other projects throughout the year.

The organization is based in El Monte and was initiated by Mick Traynor who is the current president.

Traynor and his four colleagues scouted about 2,000 southland Little Leaguers in all-star tournaments before selecting the final 15.

Redskins find Deacan's replacement

By The Associated Press

Some got traded, bounced or battered; others merely were shoved: just the usual preseason rough stuff among players at National Football League camps across the country.

Several deals were made in the marketplace Tuesday, among them the Washington Redskins signing of defensive tackle Dave Butz, a three-year man formerly with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Coach George Allen described the 24-year-old Butz, a free agent who stands 6-feet-7 and weighs 295, as "the biggest guy I've ever had," and said the Redskins and Cardinals are "trying to work out something" in the form of compensation for St. Louis.

Allen said that Butz, recovering from a knee injury, would be used sparingly in the beginning, but hinted that he hoped Butz might develop into a replacement for Deacon Jones, who retired in the off-season.

Later in the day, Charley Harraway, fullback for the Redskins from 1969 until jumping to the World Football League last year, announced his retirement.

The Denver Broncos obtained defensive back Jeff Severson from the Houston Oilers Tuesday for an undisclosed 1976 draft choice, and the Kansas City Chiefs traded veteran offensive guard Tom Humphrey to the Atlanta Falcons for rookie offensive guard John Nessel of Penn State.

Also, a host of veterans and rookies were placed on waivers as teams hastened to trim their rosters for exhibition openers this weekend.

The Chicago Bears cut six players, including veteran running back Gary Kosins, who was in his fourth season with the team.

The Detroit Lions lost two key defensive players Tuesday when tackle Jim Mitchell and defensive back Dick Jauron suffered injuries during the afternoon workouts.

Mitchell, a six-year veteran, broke a bone in his right foot and will be out for four to six weeks, a spokesman for the team said. Jauron, in his third year with the team, suffered a mild sprain of his right knee. Both were starters last year.

A brief shoving match between linebacker Fred Carr and running back Barty Smith provided a bit of unscheduled contact at the Green Bay Packers camp Tuesday, and Coach Bart Starr was pleased.

"I think it's a good sign," he said. "It showed spark on the part of both players. You get tired of hitting your buddies (in practice) after a while."

In other developments, the Dallas Cowboys indicated they were impressed as former defensive end Randy White, their No. 1 draft choice from Maryland, got his first taste of the middle linebacker position in an all-rookie scrimmage.

The Cowboys are anxious to see if the 6-4, 245-pounder will become the successor to veteran linebacker Lee Roy Jordan.

"He showed the abilities we thought he had," said linebacker coach Jerry Tubbs of White. "He's fast and agile, and will hit."

Christine Lamb earns awards

Christine Lamb, a diver representing the Mt. Baldy Aquatic Diving Team, returned from the Regional Junior Olympics at Merced College with a fifth place finish on the one-meter board and sixth place on the three-meter.

In the SPA State Diving Championships at Edison High in Huntington Beach, the Mt. Baldy team was led by Miss Lamb, who took a second place in the 9-10 girls division, and Chris Meisner, who took a third place in the 8 and under boys competition.

Other finalists included Diane Flynn in the 13-14 girls competition and Chuck Lovejoy in the 17-18 boys division.

Next competition for the team will be the District Outdoor Diving Championships at the Northridge Family Athletic Club in Chatsworth Saturday and Sunday.

Information on the club is available from Mike Dickson at 626-0996 or 624-0791.

The 22nd amendment to the Constitution, limiting a President to two terms, was ratified in 1951.

New regulations fall short on bomb-hauling by rails

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — New federal regulations lack teeth to prevent explosions on munitions trains like the blasts in Arizona and California two years ago, railroad industry observers say.

On July 1, the Federal Railroad Administration ordered railroads hauling munitions to use boxcars with steel floors and spark shields to prevent fires.

The rules are the result of months of investigation into explosions that destroyed 12 Southern Pacific Railroad cars laden with 1.5 million pounds of Navy bombs outside Benson, Ariz. in May 1973, causing $885,000 in damages.

Less than a month earlier, more than 7,000 Navy bombs aboard an SP freight exploded in Roseville, Calif., destroying about 400 homes. Damage was estimated at more than $10 million.

Both accidents could have become catastrophes, and they point to the need for a closer look at the safety of carrying bombs by rail.

In April of this year, the National Transportation Safety Board reported the probably cause of the Benson explosions was a fire that went undetected inside a boxcar.

"None of the current visual or mechanical methods of surveillance of trains insures detection of fires inside boxcars," the NTSB accident report noted.

Detectors alongside tracks were not designed to react to anything more than the heat generated by brakes grinding against the wheels, it noted.

Industry observers, who include lobbyists and federal and state officials, point to a number of problems in dealing with munitions safety.

Among them are lack of regulations and enforcement, poor inspections of bomb laden cars and beaucratic red tape.

Considering the amount of munitions American railroads carry for the government every year, their safety record is good.

Last year, for instance, the Defense Department shipped more than 1.6 million tons of ammunition, and most of it reached its destination safely.

Eight days after the Benson accident, the NTSB recommended that the FRA require the use of munitions cars equipped with roller bearings and either composition brakeshoes or spark shields. In addition, cars placed between the bomb cars and increased inspection and surveillance of munitions loading were suggested.

They resulted in an FRA emergency order last November, but it was not enforced. The other was reinstated, with a little more teeth in it, this month. An additional provision will require roller bearings on munitions cars by next January.

"We're right back where we started," complains William Critchley Jr., chief rail inspector for the Arizona Corporation Commission.

The problem "boils down to federal enforcement . . . but they just don't have enough personnel to do that," he says.

But Bob Poos, spokesman for the Association of American Railroads in Washington, says, "the ideal solution would be for the government to build these cars to their own specifications and then give them to us to haul."

However, the cost might be prohibitive, he adds. "If the railroads are going to build them, it's going to cost somebody more money, namely the railroads. It's an uneconomical thing to do."

Critchley says he believes government-supplied cars are the answer.

State legislation has twice been proposed and failed in Arizona. A bill was resurrected this year to regulate passage of bomb trains through the state but died in the Senate.

The bill contained a provision that ultimately caused its defeat to require "safe havens" for the layover of any cars bearing dangerous materials.

A chief proponent of railroad safety measures, Sen. Tom Moore, D-Tucson, calls safe havens "very impractical," and says the answer to bomb safety is to change federal rules.

Moore, who is on leave as a Southern Pacific yardmaster, also pins some blame on the railroads themselves.

"It's kind of a mutual thing," he says. "There are things they could do that they aren't doing" to improve safety. "But it's a problem with most everything—nothing's done until there is an accident."

Railroad rules already require employes, where practical, to inspect both sides of passing trains.

'Bad blood' feud between 'Tony Pro'-Hoffa told

Provenzano: a powerhouse in teamsters politics

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — The Provenzano name has been a synonym for power in Teamsters politics in New Jersey for more than a decade.

And Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano was the first, rising from leader of Local 560 in Union City to head of Joint Council 73, one of the union's largest, and to international Teamsters vice president.

When "Tony Iro" went to jail on an extortion conviction i 1966, he was replaced in the New Jersey posts by his brother, Salvatore "Sammy" Provenzano. Sammy is still there.

And there is Nunzio "Tiger" Provenzano, a vice president of Teamsters Local 522 in Newark. He was convicted of extortion in the 1960s in a different case, but never served time.

"Tony Pro," as international vice president, was believed by many in the 1960s to be No. 2 to Jimmy Hoffa in the union hierarchy. With Hoffa now missing in Michigan, a spotlight has landed on Provenzano.

He is one of three men whom witnesses and family mambers say Hoffa was scheduled to meet before disappearing last Wednesday.

Sources said Provenzano held a grudge against Hoffa since the two were imprisoned together at a federal penitentiary in Lewisburg, Pa.

And former Teamster official Daniel Sullivan said Monday night that Hoffa told him in May, 1974: "Tony Pro threatened to pull my guts out or kidnap my grandchildren if I continued to attempt to return to the presidency of the Teamsters."

Sources in New Jersey say FBI agents have spoken to Provenzano. New Jersey state police have also said Provenzano was questioned.

The bad feelings between Tony Pro and Hoffa reportedly started when Provenzano was forced to step down as head of Local 560. According to sources, Provenzano, who was paroled in 1970, asked Hoffa to change the union's pension regulations to include him, but Hoffa refused.

Provenzano, who used to keep racing pigeons in a coop on the roof of Local 560's headquarters, was convicted in 1963 of extorting $8,600 from the Dorn Transportation Corp of Rensselaer, N.Y., in return for labor peace at the firm's Secaucus, N.J., terminal.

During that trial, the jury was sequestered when a union opponent of Provenzano was shot to death in front of his Hoboken home. The victim, Walter Glockner, 27, was a shop steward of glocal 560 and was employed at the Dorn firm.

As a union officer, Provenzano liked to call himself "only a truck driver" or "one of the rank-and-file."

But his circumstances here are more grand than that. His big white house has an aboveground swimming pool and spacious greenhouse in the back. On Monday night he was believed to have left for Florida where he reportedly owns a condominium.

A flashy dresser, he sometimes sports a diamond pinky ring.

In the winter of 1962-63, Local 560 voted two salary raises for Provenzano, one to $45,000 and another to $95,000. Less than three per cent of the local's members voted on the raise to $95,000.

But Provenzano claimed he never accepted the increases. At the time Hoffa, already heading the International Union, was getting $75,000.

Born on New York's Lower East Side of Sicilian immigrant parents, Provenzano was a trucker's helper at 15 and a driver at 18.

He was a union steward, organizer, and business agent and in 1958, became local president when William Madison resigned for reasons of health. Later he was elected to the post.

It was about that time that he moved into the Clifton house, valued at the time at $27,000. The property was improved later.

The federal government was to allege in 1962 that Provenzano, by accepting the Clifton house as a gift from a trucking firm executive, violated a provision of the Taft-Hartley Act. But the indictment was later dropped after the trucker died and Provenzano was going to jail anyway in the extortion case.

In 1959, Provenzano appeared before the Senate's McClellan Committee, whose counsel was a young lawyer, Robert F. Kennedy. Tony Pro pleaded the Fifth Amendment 44 times.

Then, in 1966, he went to prison and his brother Salvatore took over the union's reins while Tony Pro served 4½ years of a 7-year term.

According to Teamsters sources, Provenzano recently boasted of expecting to resume Teamsters employment andsaid he planned to make a major move to win control of the Teamsters' East Coast region.

Sources in Hudson County, seat of Local 560, said his visits to union headquarters had increased considerably in recent months.

Sources also said he had been promised a new Teamsters job beginning in October by Hoffa's successor, Frank E. Fitzsimmons. But the union president denied it.

Venezuela control of oil seen

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) —The lower house of Congress approved legislation Monday night to nationalize U.S.-owned oil companies running Venezuela's oil industry which earned the nation $10 billion last year.

Exxon, Shell, Gulf, Mobil, Sun and Texaco subsidiaries with assets unofficially estimated at about $1.1 billion would be affected by the bill, which goes to the Senate.

Both houses are controlled by President Carlos Andres Perez' Democratic Action party.

Venezuela produces 2.5 million barrels of crude oil a day.

Opposition parties support the nationalization but oppose provisions in the bill which would permit mixed public and private companies to operate in certain areas cf the oil industry.

The bill provides for payment of a yet-unspecified compensation based on the net book value of the oil companies' fixed assets. The bill provides for payment either in cash or in public bonds over a period of 10 years.

Jury focus on gambling

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A county grand jury has recommended that the San Francisco police department abolish traditional vice squad duties and concentrate only on illegal gambling.

In a report issued Monday on police department operations, the grand jury favored the removal of sex offense-related investigation by the vice squad in lieu of California's newly passed law legalizing sexual acts between consenting adults.

The grand jury report urged more emphasis on regular patrol, smaller beat areas, swifter responses to crimes and better departmental efficiency, while calling for de-emphasis of sex-related offenses traditionally left to vice squad details.

The proposal stopped short of recommending legalized prostitution and was met with disbelief by Police Chief Donald Scott, who called the proposal "ridiculous."

Spruce Goose lease okayed

LONG BEACH (AP) — Howard Hughes' Spruce Goose, the giant wooden seaplane locked away after its one-mile maiden voyage 28 years ago, won't be seen by the public for at least another year.

A threatened eviction of the plane from its dockside hangar was averted Monday when the Long Beach Harbor Commission approved an extension of the lease with Hughes' Summa Corp.

But the agreement specified that after July 1, 1976, the city can order Hughes officials to remove the seaplane on six months' notice.

Hughes attorney Jonah Jones said before the commission's action that the plane would have to be dismantled for museum display if it were evicted from the heavily guarded hangar. The plane was retired after Hughes flew it one mile in 1947.

The craft, fashioned largely from plywood, has a 320-foot wingspan and eight engines.

Tip gets 5 held on dope

Pomona police credited We Turn In Pushers (We T.I.P.) informant with supplying a tip leading to the arrest of three women and two men for attempting to sell 24 ounces of Mexican heroin with a street value of $145,000 to undercover officers.

According to police, a call from an anonymous informant to We T.I.P. sparked a 2½-month investigation of a group of suspected heroin dealers by Pomona and state narcotics undercover officers. The officers, according to Pomona police, started a buy program in Pomona that led to the purchase of one ounce of heroin in Pomona, two ounces of heroin in Santa Ana, and finally 20 ounces of heroin in Whittier.

As a result of the buy program, staged by the undercover officers, five persons were arrested and the 24 ounces of heroin impounded, along with several thousand dollars in cash.

This week complaints are being sought in Los Angeles and Orange counties against Juana Maldonado, 29, of Whittier, her husband Juvenal, 43, of the same address, for sales of heroin; Dollie Dot Arellano of 2469 Barjud St., Pomona, for sales of heroin; and Jose Anthony Peralta, 29, and Lucy Peralta, 29, both of Placentia, for possession for sales of heroin, according to police.

Pomona detectives said that the We T.I.P. informant, given the code name of GH 5142, was directly responsible for breaking the suspected heroin pushing ring.

The late President Harry S. Truman's special license plate number was 5745, commemorating Germany's surrender in World War II on May 7, 1945.

Firm appeals verdict in antitrust action

National Gypsum Co., of which American Olean Tile Co. in Pomona is a division, has filed notice of appeal from the federal jury verdict rendered in Pittsburgh on July 15 in a Sherman antitrust suit.

The company's chairman of the board, Colon Brown, and vice president of sales for its Gold Bond Building Products Division, Jay P. Nicely, have also appealed.

A company spokesman at the firm's Buffalo, N.Y. headquarters stated that all four other defendants in that action will also file notices of appeal.

The spokesman said officials deny they engaged in any unlawful acts.

Following the verdict by a jury sitting in the Federal District Court in Pittsburgh that National Gypsum, its chairman and the vice president of sales had violated the Sherman antitrust law, Judge Herbert I. Teitelbaum stayed for an indefinite period the sentences and fines.

Vandalism may close Nogales pool

More acts of vandalism at the Nogales High School swimming pool in La Puente which have caused high maintenance costs may cause the pool to be closed, according to schools Supt. Stanley G. Oswalt.

Oswalt, in a report to the school board, outlined "continuous and repeated acts of weekend vandalism to the pool" which included breaking of pool lights, throwing garbage, rocks, bottles and mud into the pool, and the tossing of lifeguard towers, starting benches, tables, chairs and full garbage cans into the pool.

Replacement costs on pool equipment has amounted to $2,287. A $9,000 replastering job has begun to crack because of heavy objects being thrown in. The constant breaking of pool filters means the entire pool filtering system will have to be replaced at a cost of $5,000, according to maintenance foreman John Pomozzi.

Normally pool filters are replaced every six months. At Nogales, Pomozzi said, torn pool filters must be changed every two weeks.

Access to the pool area by vandals is obtained by climbing a 10-foot high fence and over the locker-room roof.

Loss of federal highway aid will idle 3,300 in state

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California will lose $130 million in federal highway funds next year and have to lay off about 3,300 workers because of its transportation finance problems, state officials say.

Director Howard C. Ullrich of the Department of Transportation (Caltrans) said Monday the 16,450-member staff would be cut to 13,150 by next July 1.

Program cutbacks also mean California will lose $130 million in federal funds because the state won't have enough matching money, he said.

"We have begun procedures to lay off as many as 1,650 persons by early 1976," he said Monday.

"The number of layoffs depends on whether or not turnover — retirements and other resignations — is enough to bring manpower down in line with our reduced program level."

Caltrans recently announced freezes on new construction contracts and stopped all general right-of-way purchases for new highways because of lower state revenues and soaring inflation.

Ullrich said Caltrans will still have enough money to keep commitments in current contracts and to maintain existing highways.

He said the reduced payroll will allow the state to pull in as much as $250 million in federal matching funds for next year's highway program, so that minor construction contracts for repairs could be let early in 1976.

"But we will not be able to put together a completely adequate program of safety and operations improvement, and there will be no new highway construction," Ullrich said.

ROBERT VOORHEES will manage the Montclair office of Santa Barbara Savings when it opens on Central Avenue in Montclair late this month. He heads the firm's San Bernardino office now.

Ex-governor will become news analyst

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Former Gov. Tom McCall of Oregon will become a news analyst and commentator for KATU-TV, Portland, in September.

The station said McCall will continue his newspaper column and his radio commentaries carried on a state network.

He was a commentator on KGW-TV before being elected secretary of state in 1964.

Atomic bomb rippling yet

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Veterans Administration doctors and the family of a former Navy man who went ashore at Nagasaki disagree on whether radiation contributed to the man's death.

The man was Terry G. Feil, 49, former member of the Republican State Central Committee who ran unsuccessfully for a congressional seat in 1966.

Feil, as a 19-year-old Navy corpsman, went to Nagasaki from the USS Sanctuary, a hospital ship, after the atomic bombin in 1945. He told his mother, Margaret Feil, that much of his hair later fell out, like that of others on the ship.

Last week Feil died, and his family said he had cancer attributable to his Nagasaki exposure.

But Dr. Jerry Tarder of the VA hosptal in Martinez said he found no evidence that Feil's fatal cancer of the lymph glands was related to the Nagasaki exposure.

In Washington, the Navy said the Sanctuary went to Nagasaki Sept. 23 and 24, 1945, 45 days after the bombing. Navy radiation experts were reported by a spokesman as saying because of the time lapse, the radiation would have been immeasurable.

Also, the Navy said, there was no fallout from the Nagasaki bombing and that therefore the radiation dissipated very quickly.

The spokesman said that nobody in the medical bureau could recall hearing of any radiation aftereffects among the 70 officers and 498 enlisted men on the ship.

RIVERSIDE (AP)— Democrat Sidney Phillips learned painfully that a rap of the gavel is a call for order. The gavel was rapped on his head, inflicting a 1½-inch gash.

Riverside Police Chief Max Roundy said Monday that Floyd Melton, president of the Riverside County Democratic Central Committee, called repeatedly for order and then strode up to Phillips and knocked him on the head with the gavel.

The police chief said other committee members told him the 61-year-old Phillips continued "haranguing, yelling and screaming" though he had been declared out of order by Melton.

Phillips, president of the Palm Springs Democratic Club, was treated at Riverside General Hospital and released.

'Easy Rider' spreads the gospel

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — When the Rev. Stan George travels to spread the word of God, it's not uncommon for him to raise a few eyebrows along the way.

It's not that people are taken aback by the message he preaches or the zeal with which he delivers it. But it's not every missionary who conducts his ministry from the seat of a motorcycle.

Over the past five years, Rev. George has traveled more than 78,000 miles in conducting his motorcycle ministry. He says he's aiming for 100,000.

And between his treks as a Christian easy rider, he spends his time filling in at Presbyterian churches that are temporarily without a minister of their own.

"I enjoy that kind of thing," he says. "But I really find my motorcycle ministry most rewarding."

Most of his cross country jaunts are spent distributing what he calls "love sections" — passages from I Corinthians 13 — to the people he encounters in coffee shops, gas stations and other stops along the way.

"Sometimes we'll stop and talk. You have no idea of the number of friends I've made from one part of this country to the other."

Rev. George was back in San Bernardino recently — a return to the town where he earned a reputation for leading crusades against gambling clubs and prostitution.

He recalled a recent trip to Cincinnati for the Presbyterian General Assembly, a 14-day, 4,800-mile round-trip journey.

"I stayed in churches and in friends' homes," said Rev. George, who is nearing 70.

"Sometimes I slept on the floor, sometimes under bridges — just wherever I could."

The trip, he said, cost him all of $82.

And he has no plans for slowing down in the near future. He says he plans at least two more cross-country trips astride his 750cc touring machine in the next two years before settling down to write a book: $100,000 Miles on a Motorcycle."

Then he plans to abandon his cycle, at least temporarily, for a plane trip with his wife to Hawaii.

"I told her she could go," he said, "and she can spend all she wants — up to the amount I spent going across country this year."

No absinthe

The United States prohibits the importation of absinthe, habitual use of which causes mental and physical debility.

Contrary Harry's garden prospering

VISALA (AP) — Everything's coming up roses — and cucumbers and tomatoes — at the Robert K. Mayers Youth Center here.

Instead of the traditional correctional chores like stamping out license plates and breaking rocks, teenaged inmates contructed and run a nursery and greenhouse featuring vegetables and flowering plants.

The nursery was set up late last year to give the young offenders a chance to harvest a practical skill along with regular high school courses they take while at the center.

"The idea was to provide a school lab that was both productive, in that something saleable would be produced, and provide educational goals as well," said instructor John Musser.

Fans beg for John ducats

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elton John, rock music's reigning superstar, leaped into a pile of some 30,000 postcards and declared: "This is a bit mind boggling."

The cards were from California fans begging a chance to pay $25 each for tickets to John's upcoming charity concert at the Troubadour nightclub which seats only 250 persons per show.

John, capering on the stage clad in a green satin suit, diamond braclet and green heartshaped eyeglasses, picked 500 "winners" from the pile Monday.

He will do shows on three nights Aug. 25, 26 and 27 to raise $150,000 for the Jules Stein Eye Clinc at UCLA. The first show "by inviation only" will be priced at $250 a seat.

"Because of my eyesight being bad, I thought this would obviously be a good thing to do," John told reporters. "I wanted to do a benefit show in America...I wear eyeglasses and Mr. Stein has a very good eye clinic."

Besides, John added, "It's very difficult to find a charity that's straight . . . You can do benefits for people all the time and spend the next two or three years wondering where the money went."

John's trademark is his collection of 200 pair of gaudy eyeglasses — some diamond-studded, others mink-lined.

Even with glasses, John confesses, he can't see his audience most of the time.

"My left eye is larger than my right which makes me quite shortsighted. I can see the audience only if it's an open-air concert in daylight...at night, if there is no spotlight I can see the first two or three rows...I much prefer doing shows during the daytime."

This fall, he will become the first rock act since The Beatles to perform in mammoth Dodger Stadium. "I'm looking forward to performing there," he said. "It's very nice of them to let me in."

Of life at the top, John said, "It has its ups and downs, just like being a bank teller."

"Devil ray" is another name for the great manta, a giant ray of the open ocean.

This huge fish can grow to be 22 feet across and weigh well over a ton. Its winglike fins and flattened body give the devil ray more of a batlike appearance than fishlike and, when swimming, it looks like a huge bat flapping through the water.

Subject of many fish tales, the devil ray has long been feared by pearl divers and fishermen, who believed that it would enfold them with its great wings and then eat them.

But despite its name and great size, the devil ray is not a dangerous fish. It eats only fish and other small ocean life.

Apparently in play, devil rays often leap completely out of the water, landing with a thunderous slap.

Still another name for this big fish is "devilfish."

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

1500th concert

Milestone at H'wood Bowl

An all-Beethoven program Saturday night will salute the 1500th Los Angeles Philharmonic concert in the Hollywood Bowl since the outdoor amphitheater opened in 1922.

BOB CROSBY and his orchestra will perform for dancing and listening at the Plaza Gardens at Disneyland from 8:30 p.m. to 12:15 a.m. Sunday through Aug. 18. The Miracles, Motown recording artists, will appear at 9 and 11:30 p.m. nightly through Aug. 15 on the Tomorrowland Stage.

Lucas Foss will conduct the orchestra, and pianist Van Cliburn will perform the "Emperor" Concerto. The Philharmonic will play the Fifth Symphony and the "Battle Symphony," complete with canon, muskets and fireworks.

Cliburn came to international attention when he won the first International Tchaikovsky Piano Competition in Moscow in 1958. Since then the Louisiana-born pianist has led an active career as soloist with the world's leading orchestras and as recitalist. He has performed at the Hollywood Bowl seven times and with the philharmonic at the Los Angeles Music Center three times.

Foss, Berlin-born composer-conductor, is musical director of the Brooklyn Philharmonic, and the Kol-Israel Orchestra of Jerusalem. A regular with the Philharmonic, he was originator, with Ernest Fleischmann, director of the bowl, of the five-hour marathon concerts.

Foss will also conduct the Philharmonic in a concert at the bowl Thursday night. The program will include Tchaikovsky's "Francesca da Rimini," Saint-Saens' Symphony No. 3 in C Minor, and Ravel's Concerto in G for Piano and Orchestra, with Lorin Hollander as soloist.

HALL OF FREEDOM — Independence Hall at Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park is an exact replica of the original building in Philadelphia where the Declaration of Independence was signed July 4, 1776. The replica is made of 140,000 hand-made clay bricks. The tower is 169 feet from the ground. The Farm offers daily guided tours of the hall, with a dramatic stereo presentation.

SHORT VIEW — Billy Barty, midget star of movies and television, will conduct variety shows at Griswold's Old School House, Claremont, at 2 p.m. Aug. 16 and 17. The performances are part of "Circus Days," a week-long benefit opening there Tuesday at noon.

'Circus Days' at Griswold's

Local singers, dancers, acrobats, tumblers and musicians are invited to take part in an amateur contest at Griswold's Old School House, Claremont, as part of "Circus Days," a benefit carnival to be held there Tuesday through Aug. 17.

Performers must register in advance. Prizes will be tickets to the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus. The contest will be held Aug. 15, and the winners will perform in a variety show the following evening.

"Circus Days" is a benefit for the non-profit Association of Little People Research Foundation, a Los Angeles-based organization probing cause and cure of dwarfism.

Midget film and television star Billy Barty will headline variety shows at 2 p.m. Aug. 16 and 17. Admission is free.

Professional clowns will conduct workshops on stunts, makeup and costumes from noon to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Aug. 14. Also on the afternoon schedule are game booths, jazz bands, a parade of midgets, and wild animals from Lion Country Safari. Admission is free.

At 1 p.m. Aug. 15 local children and adults are invited to join in a circus parade led by lions and elephants. Decorated bikes and wagons, costumes and trick pets will take part.

On Aug. 15 and 16, from 8 p.m. to midnight, a Dixieland jazz jamboree will be staged by Joe Darensborg's 7-piece group. Admission is $3.50, with proceeds going to the Billy Barty Foundation.

Information on the clown workshop, amateur contest and parade can be obtained at 626-2411, Ext. 361.

Chorus, Marine Band scheduled at Starlite

The 3rd Marine Aircraft Wing Band from El Toro Marine Base will present a free concert at the Starlite Patio Theater, Montclair Civic Center, at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Also on the program is the chorus of the Pomona Valley chapter of the Sweet Adelines, conducted by Lois Whitney of Covina.

This is the final program of the summer for the Starlite Patio Theater series, offered free by the Montclair recreation department.

The military band is conducted by Sgt. Anthony J. DiGiovanni and Sgt. Charles L. Butler. The group performs throughout the Western United States.

Taking part in the concert will be two quartets from the Sweet Adelines — the award-winning Sounds of Harmony and the comedy group, the Norse Winds.

Butz hopeful about food prices

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz is counting on huge crops of wheat and corn this year to calm fears over rising food prices which may result from new grain sales to the Soviet Union.

But he isn't 100 per cent sure. "It all depends on the size of our corn crop," Butz said in an interview. "Obviously, I can't say it won't mean an increase, but it will be negligible."

If the corn crop turns out the size that the Agriculture Department currently predicts, experts say even more grain could be sold to Russia without hurting American consumers.

But if prospects decline severely because of dry weather, grain prices may go up because of increased demand.

So instead of a 6 to 8 per cent boost in food prices in 1975 now predicted by USDA, about half the rate of recent years, consumers could be saddled with a larger increase and further gains in 1976.

Butz said "we've put a hold on, for all practical purposes" on further sales of wheat and corn to Russia until more is known about U.S. crop prospects and, for that matter, the Soviet harvest.

Last month U.S. grain companies disclosed they had sold 154 million bushels of wheat and 177 million of corn to the Soviets. Grain prices, which had declined from record peaks of last year, began rising.

Suddenly, it seemed to be 1972 all over again.

Sales of 433 million bushels of wheat and 240 million of corn in 1972, conducted in secret by private grain companies and aided by U.S. credit and export subsidies, helped tigger an unprecedented three-year round of farm exports and soaring food prices.

No government subsidies or credit are involved now, and grain companies must report large exports promptly to USDA. But despite the precautions, what happened to food prices after the 1972 deals is alarmingly fresh in consumer minds.

Retail food prices, which during the seven-year span from 1960 through 1967 rose a total of 13.6 per cent, jumped an average of 14.5 per cent in 1973 and another 14.5 per cent in 1974. The new sales, prompted by a drought in Russia, are not likely to trigger similar food price increases this year or next — if farmers get the size of crops USDA has forecast — according to Butz.

"We've just got a massive production this year," Butz said. "The wheat's in place. and the corn is coming along in good shape — although something could happen to part of it. If we get 10 bushels (per acre) knocked off the yield, that's kind of serious. And it is dry in some parts, but in other parts it's very very fine."

Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur D. Burns told the Joint Congressional Economic Committee last week, however, that "there already has been a significant increase in grain prices" and that he was concerned the new sales to Russia may trigger sharp food price increases.

Butz, in Williamsburg, Va., countered that "some people who don't know wheat from chaff are drawing ridiculous conclusions about selling grain to Russia."

The same day, last Thursday, USDA reported that the farm price of wheat rose to $3.33 a bushel as of mid-month from $2.92 on June 15. Corn prices were up four cents to $2.72 a bushel.

Prices of both grains, however, were far below the record peaks set last year. And some USDA economists say they are not likely to go much higher if harvests are as large as the department says.

The wheat sales have drawn the sharpest comment, partly because wheat provides bread — the traditional "staff of life" — and, for Americans, is the major food grain. But it is corn as a feed grain for livestock which provides most of what consumers buy at food stores in the form of meat, poultry and milk.

EARL BUTZ

According to a USDA market-basket analysis of 65 farm-produced food items, meat, dairy and poultry products account for more than 50 per cent of what Americans buy to eat.

Bakery and cereal items, which include wheat, corn and other grain products, add another 17 per cent, meaning that nearly $7 of every $10 Americans spend on groceries are for grain-related products.

In July 1972, just as the big Russian sales were unfolding, wheat at the farm was $1.32 a bushel and corn $1.14 a bushel. By December wheat was $2.38 and corn $1.42 a bushel.

But that was only the beginning. Inflation was gnawing at the U.S. economy and many other countries, notably Japan and those in the European Common Market, took advantage of a depreciated U.S. dollar to make huge purchases of American farm products.

Further, poor weather reduced grain production severely in many key world regions in 1972, including the Soviet Union, and that put further pressure on U.S. supplies. Prices soared. Some farmers saw profits wilt and cut back feeding grain to animals, and prices continued to climb.

This time, as of July 1, USDA estimated a record 1975 wheat crop of 2.2 billion bushels and a record corn harvest of 6.05 billion bushels. Officials said that would be enough, even including further sales to the Russians, to provide for all domestic and export needs and add substantially to U.S. grain reserves.

If those figures stand, the Soviet purchases so far amount to only 13.6 per cent of the 1.3 billion bushels USDA says will be exported to all countries in the coming year and 12.8 per cent of the 1.2 billion bushels of wheat to be shipped.

Not only are aerosol cans a possible threat to our environment — they also push up the price of a product. Avoid both by buying products in another form; liquids, roll-ons and creams are available for a multitude of products. Spray bottles are available for window cleaner and starch, for instance.

Apples: they got off to a great start

The fruit that tempted Eve and brought the world crashing down can have borne little resemblance to the apple because the apple tree has never grown well in the Holy Land!

That forbidden bite was more likely out of a citron or quince, both native to the "Eden region" and both fitting the Bible's reference to "apples of gold"!

If Eve bit off more than she could chew, whether apple or quince, she did pave the way for the evolution of the apple as one of the most popular foods in the world. This robust and popular fruit has played a prominent rôle in legend and history.

Apples have been with us since the dawn of time. Drawings of apples have been found in prehistoric caves and carbonized apples from as far back as the Iron Age have been discovered in excavations of Swiss lake dwellings.

Cato, in 300 B.C., recognized seven different varieties of apples and Romans, in their military exploits, supplied them to their troops for nourishment.

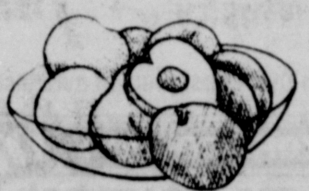
The "Apple of Discord" ranks prominently in Greek lore and was said to be responsible for the Trojan War! This apple, cast of solid gold and bearing the inscription, "To the Fairest", was claimed by the goddesses Hera, Athena and Aphrodite, who wrangled over it while promising Paris untold riches, power and glory, for he had the maddening task of choosing the winner. After awarding the apple to Aphrodite, who had promised him the fairest wife in the land, he carried off Helen, neglecting the fact that she was already married — and thus precipitated the Trojan War.

Other legendary apples include the one that the mythical William Tell shot off his son, Walter's head, and the one that hit the real Sir Isaac Newton on the head. Actually, Sir Isaac did have his mind jogged by an apple, but not literally. That apple was one of many that he saw falling at his feet in an apple orchard.

The apple, too, may be the origin of the pawnbroker's sign. The story goes that St. Nicholas heard about a good nobleman in his town who had lost all his money and couldn't endow his three beautiful daughters. The Saint flung three bags of gold through the nobleman's window for the daughters' dowries. These bags are shown in early depictions as three golden apples, the forerunner of the pawnbroker's sign.

By feudal times hundreds of varieties of apples were known throughout Europe and were imported to the New World from England. But the apple found a good home in America, and by 1841 the New England colonies were exporting nature-grown apples to the West Indies; and, not long afterward, to London itself.

The legendary Johnny Appleseed carried the apple west to the Ohio territory, in the late 18th century; strewing the present states of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois with the beginnings of orchards. And eventually, the apple reached the Pacific Coast and found such a haven there that today the state of Washington shares top production honors with New York.



In March of 1964, the New Jersey Senate unanimously passed a Resolution "Saluting the apple jack brandy industry as the oldest native distilled spirit beverage industry in the United States."

Records indicate that William Laird, a county Fyfe Scotsman, settled in Monmouth County, New Jersey, and produced apple jack as early as 1698.

History tells us that in the middle 1700's George Washington asked for and received Laird's recipe for producing apple jack. Several interesting references to Apple Jack appears in his diaries: On August 3, 1768: "Sold rye — and began stilling cyder." April 4, 1768: "The carpenters went to gathering staves for cyder casks." August 29, 1788: "The other hands were pressing cyder." These are the major steps in producing apple jack.

In the early 1800's, Abraham Lincoln ran a tavern in Springfield, Illinois. His published list of rates offered apple brandy (apple jack) at 12c per ½ pint. While this may sound like a ridiculously low price, the same rate list offered a night's lodging and breakfast for 12½c and dinner for 25c.

There are some 7,500 varieties of apples throughout the world today. Some are new types developed for processing; others are improvements over older varieties. The four leading types in the United States are the Red Delicious, McIntosh, Winesap, and Rome Beauty, but you've probably eaten the Golden Delicious, Cortland, Rhode Island Greening, Lodi, Baldwin, and others as well.

Each type of apple is most suitable for a different aspect of apple eatery and cookery. For instance, Red Delicious, Yellow Delicious and McIntosh look and taste beautiful, but Cortland are best for salads, Rome Beauties for baking and Rhode Island Greening and Yellow Transparent for pies.

Here are some intriguing dishes with apple jack as a principal ingredient:

APPLE JACK PUNCH

1 pt apple jack
1 cup orange juice
1 cup strong orange pekoe tea
½ cup sugar syrup
juice of 4 lemons
½ cup pineapple juice
2 tablespoons strained honey
½ cup sliced strawberries

Combine ingredients in suitable container and chill for several hours. Pour over large cake of ice in punch bowl. Add 1 quart club soda. Decorate with orange slices and cherries.

APPLE JACK PIE

Line a deep, 10" pie plate with pie crust. In a separate bowl blend the following:

2/3rd cups sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon quince jelly dissolved in ½ cup apple jack
4 cups of freshly peeled and sliced apples
½ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons tapioca
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg

Fill shell, add top crust and seal edges. Bake at 360 degrees for 50-55 minutes. To make a gourmet dessert from a bakery apple pie, just pour ¼ cup Apple Jack over the top of the crust and reheat in the oven. The alcohol evaporates during heating, leaving only the wonderful apple jack flavor.

SCALLOPS PIQUANT

1 lb. small scallops
1 teaspoon Worchestershire sauce
dash tabasco
1 tablespoon minced onion
⅛ lb. butter
1/3rd cup apple jack

Melt butter, add onion, Worchestershire sauce and tabasco. Stir in apple jack and pour mixture over scallops in Pyrex oven dish. Bake in 400 degree oven for 20 minutes.

A DELICACY — Thomas Jefferson, a leading gourmet of his time, began America's romance with the French fry when he served them among other "exotic" foods to his White House dinner guests.

They're French fries

Everyone eats 'em

OAK BROOK, Ill. — It could have been called the "Tudor 'tater" or the "Irish Idaho." But it's known as the French fry — that slender cut of fried potato that's as American as the hamburger.

Thomas Jefferson began America's romance with the French fry when he served White House dinner guests this then-French cuisine. Today French fries account for 50 per cent of all potato orders in U.S. restaurants.

Surprisingly, it did originate in France. However, it took the French some time to find out about the potato. Oddly enough, the French wore their potatoes long before they began to eat them.

The Peruvian Indians were the first people known to have the potato. They called the edible root "pappas." When the Spaniards came to South America, they renamed the root "batates" or "patates" and brought it back to Spain, and then to Italy.

It took the remainder of Europe even more time to discover the food potential of potatoes. Europeans at first raised them as garden ornaments — and dandies sported the plant as a boutonniere.

There are two versions of how the potato arrived in England. One legend says that pirates brought it back as booty — with Sir Walter Raleigh, Sir Francis Drake or Sir John Hawkins variously receiving credit. The other legend says the potatoes were washed ashore from the Spanish Armada. However it arrived in the North, the potato made its appearance on the Irish scene at about the same time.

In 1613 the English brought the potato to Bermuda, and in 1621 took it with them to the 13 American colonies in New England.

It wasn't until the 18th century that the French began to eat the potato. A pharmacist named Parmentier, whila a prisoner in Prussia during the Seven Years War, survived on the roots of the "potato flower" for one year. Returning to France, Parmentier cultivated the potato and surmised that it was an answer to his country's food needs. In 1769 his potatoes won first prize in a contest sponsored by the town of Besancon; the challenge was to grow a crop that could substitute for a grain cereal.

Although Jefferson introduced French fries to the U.S., he wasn't the first founding father to eat them. While ambassador to France, Benjamin Franklin attended a banquet hosted by Parmentier. There the fare was nothing but potatoes, prepared 20 different ways. Deep frying in hot fat was just one of many ways the French made it tasty.

Those Texans really love their shortribs

Although beef short ribs have a wonderful flavor all their own and are relatively inexpensive, few barbecue enthusiasts think to try them.

Down Texas way, they've tried 'em and love 'em. These ribs are rich, spicy and great for eating with the fingers — mustard is the secret ingredient.

Serve with giardinere salad, baked potatoes, french bread and orange sherbet for dessert.

BARBECUED BEEF RIBS WITH SPICY BROWN SAUCE

4 lb. lean short ribs, cut in 3" pieces
4 packets seasoning and broth

SPICY BROWN SAUCE

1¼ cups pineapple juice
¼ cup mustard
¼ cup sherry
¼ cup soy sauce
2 tablespoons dark brown sugar
1 teaspoon garlic powder
½ teaspoon ginger

Place ribs in baking pan; sprinkle with seasoning and broth. Mix all sauce ingredients together and pour over ribs. Marinate one hour or longer.

TO COOK IN OVEN: Cover ribs in pan with aluminum foil. Bake in 350 degrees F. oven for 1½ hours.

TO COOK OUTDOORS: Wrap ribs in double heavy-duty aluminum foil folded at top and ends drugstore style. Adjust rack on outdoor grill to 6" from coals. Cook foil-wrapped ribs 30 minutes on one side, THEN turn packages; cook 30 minutes longer. Remove ribs from foil.

Thread ribs on skewers alternating with cherry tomatoes, parboiled white onions, green pepper or any vegetables desired. Pour sauce into a jar; allow to settle and skim off fat. Grill skewered ribs 6" from broiler or glowing coals, turning and brushing with sauce until crisp and brown. Serve with remaining sauce.

Serves 4 to 6.

SALAD GIARDINERE

½ cup sliced onion
½ small head cauliflower, broken in flowerets
1 cup fresh zucchini, sliced
2 carrots, sliced
2 stalks celery, sliced
1 jar (3 oz.) small black olives
¾ cup wine vinegar
½ cup olive oil
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon papper
½ teaspoon basil

Blanch cauliflower, zucchini, carrots and celery in boiling water for 3 minutes. Drain well. Toss with remaining ingredients. Store in covered container in your refrigerator. Similar to relish, this unusual salad will keep for days.

Chilled chowder using potatoes

Potato chowder, served icy cold, is a refreshing experience. Traditionally, thick, hearty chowders are served hot and considered cold weather fare. But let a chowder turn cold and it shows its summer appetite appeal. It also complies with the easy-does-it code for summer cooking.

Matter of fact, this soup has a fast and easy start with frozen southern style hash browns. There's no time consuming peeling and dicing needed. Just put the frozen southern style hash browns into the pan and proceed. In about fifteen minutes or less, the potatoes will have become a well seasoned chowder, colorful with shredded carrots and diced green pepper and smooth with cream. Be sure to give it a good chill for the colder it is the more refreshing it tastes.

The heartiness of the chowder makes it a delightful luncheon or dinner entree, and serving bowls in beds of cracked ice can only increase its popularity. It will also assure a cold soup when eaten, especially if it has to stand and wait or is to be served outside. For the perfect accompaniments, serve with cheese straws or herb buttered French bread and a fruits-of-the-season salad.

CHILLED POTATO CHOWDER

3 cups frozen hash browns
½ cup fresh frozen chopped onions
1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed chicken broth
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
½ cup coarsely shredded pared carrot
1/3 cup diced green pepper
2 cups light cream (half and half)
Fresh basil and parsley

Mix together frozen potatoes, onions, chicken broth, salt, lemon peel and pepper in a two-quart saucepan. Heat to simmering. Cover and continue to simmer for five minutes. Add carrot and green pepper to potato mixture. Return to simmering, and cook five minutes longer, or just until potatoes are tender. Remove from heat and stir in light cream. Chill. Accompany soup with a small bowl of finely chopped fresh basil and parsley to sprinkle on each serving. Makes four to five servings.

Fresh fruits, vegetables can cut cholesterol

There is wide divergence of opinion within the medical profession as to causes of high cholesterol levels in man.

The relationship between the cholesterol level and coronary heart disease or atherosclerosis continues to be the subject of many studies. Several recent studies indicated that fresh fruits and vegetables as a large part of the diet can reduce cholesterol levels in man.

In a study conducted at the Laboratory of Physiological Hygiene, University of Minnesota, investiators worked with 12 young men, testing dietary supplements of sucrose (sugar), wheat flour, mixed fruits and mixed vegetables. Only the mixed vegetable supplement produced a significant difference in the serum cholesterol level and also lowered the serum phospholipid level, but not the triglyceride level.

All these levels are important from a nutritional viewpoint. However, researchers have not determined why the vegetable diet produced the lower cholesterol level.

Research findings support those in an earlier study financed partly by the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association. Data published in 1960 showed that pectin, a substance common in fruits such as citrus and apples, when fed at 15 grams daily, lowered cholesterol level of the blood about 10 milligrams per milliter, a significant reduction, in 24 men.

Rockefeller University Hospital in New York City also is conducting a program to test ways to reduce cholesterol in the blood. One of the subjects, Ernest Holsendolph, recently described his participation in the experiment in an article in THE NEW YORK TIMES.

His diet consisted of no more than four ounces of trimmed red meat in a day, plus low-cholesterol main dishes — fish, poultry and veal — with no limit on fruits and vegetables, according to the reporter. The only restriction was placed on the overweight whose daily food intake was not to exceed 1,500 to 2,000 calories.

In the 26-week government - sponsored program, Holsendolph reports that his cholesterol level dropped from 296 to 218, well within the "normal" range for his age category.

Vegetable pies with filling

A basic recipe allows outdoor chefs to vary their menus with little effort.

For example, a baked shell using toasted wheat germ and biscuitmix is just right to fill with a sour cream vegetable filling or other hot fillings such as cheese. These shells also are tasty hot or cold filled with cool, crisp vegetable salads.

WHEAT GERM VEGETABLES PIES

1 cup vacuum packed toasted wheat germ
1 cup biscuit mix
¼ cup butter
3 tablespoons milk, about Hot or Cold Vegetable Filling

Mix wheat germ and biscuit mix. Cut in butter with mixer until mixture is crumbly and consistency of coarse meal. Beat in milk gradually, using just enough to form a dough. Divide dough into 6 equal portions. Press onto bottom and sides of 6 (5-inch) individual foil pie pans. Place on baking sheet. Bake in 375-degree oven 12 to 14 minutes or until golden. Fill as desired with hot or cold vegetables.

Makes 6 servings.

SOUR CREAM VEGETABLE FILLING

Cut 2 medium onions in half lengthwise and slice thinly. Saute in 1 tablespoon butter a few minutes. Cover closely, reduce heat and continue to steam cook about 5 minutes. Top with 1 (10-ounce) package frozen mixed vegetables, 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ cup water. Heat to boiling, cover, reduce heat and let simmer about 5 minutes longer. Stir in 2 teaspoons soy sauce and 1 cup dairy sour cream. Heat to simmering.

QUICK WHEAT GERM BISCUITS

1½ cups biscuit mix
½ cup vacuum packed toasted wheat germ
1 tablespoon salad oil
2/3 cup milk or water

Mix together all ingredients with fork to form a dough. Spoon into 12 mounds on lightly greased baking sheet. Bake in 450-degree oven 10 to 12 minutes or until golden.

Makes 1 dozen biscuits.

Tender lean ribs great for summer

An old fashioned backyard cookout with tender lean ribs barbecued with a thick, homemade tomato sauce is the perfect answer to summer dining.

The more ribs you have on the grill, the better the cookout is going to be. For variety, have a selection of back ribs, country ribs and spareribs. Or select your favorite kind.

The key to successful outdoor cookery of meat is dependable tenderness and controlled heat.

Consider the size, thickness and flexibility of the ribs before grilling. Spareribs, for example are flexible enough to thread on the spit of the rotisserie. Or, if desired, can be cooked by the direct heat method. Meaty country ribs that are thicker are best cooked by the indirect method in a covered grill. Allow 45 minutes to 1 hour cooking time for pork back ribs and spareribs. Once again, cooking time will depend on the thickness. Country ribs will take about 1½ hours cooking time.

During the last half hour of cooking time, brush the ribs with Home Style Barbecue Sauce. This thick tangy sauce brings out the flavor of pork ribs. Attach a slice of lemon and onion to each rib section before adding the sauce to further enhance the flavor.

Cabbage and Carrot Salad with Hot Bacon Dressing is a lively version of the traditional cole slaw. Great for patio meals, it's a natural accompaniment for your cookout featuring barbecued ribs.

Cabbage and Carrot Salad with Hot Bacon Dressing
Yield: 9 to 10 servings

6 to 7 cups shredded cabbage
2 cups shredded carrots
4 slices bacon, diced
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup sliced onion
½ cup water
⅓ cup vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon celery seed
¼ teaspoon dill seed

Combine cabbage and carrots in large bowl. Fry diced bacon until crisp. Remove from skillet with slotted spoon. Add sugar and flour to bacon drippings. Blend. Add onion, water, vinegar and seasonings. Cook over low heat until thick. Pour over cabbage and carrots. Toss to distribute dressing evenly. Sprinkle bacon pieces on top before serving.

Home Style Barbecue Sauce
Yield: 3-½ cups

1 can (29 ounces) tomato puree
½ cup water
4 tomatoes, peeled and quartered (optional)
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 cup sliced onion
½ cup lemon juice
¼ cup catsup
3 tablespoons brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon mustard
Lemon slices
Onion slices

Combine first 12 ingredients in medium size saucepan. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer one to 1½ hours to blend flavors. Attach lemon and onion slices to ribs with toothpick during the last half hour of cooking time. Brush ribs with sauce and continue cooking; basting often with sauce.

Note: Leftover sauce may be frozen in plastic containers.

Those hot dishes need a boost

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A lot of dishes can be transformed into fiery offerings by dousing them with cayenne, hot sauce or curry powder. But the classic hot dishes are those that were intended from their inception to be that way and which invite the use of such condiments.

It is to such foods that John Phillips Cranwell pays tribute in his new volume "The Hellfire Cookbook" (Quadrangle-The New York Times Book Co.).

The author offers a wide range of tongue-searing delights launched into orbit with such boosters as garlic, hot sauce, ginger, chili, curry, mustard and horseradish.

Starting out with canapes, the author notes that cocktail party appetizers should be thirst inducing. Some, like cereal-based snacks, make you thirsty and also provide a blotting paper effect that absorbs a good deal of the alcohol.

Turning to soups, the author recommends peppery ones because they "accelerate the flow of gastric juices and thus aid digestion." Such a one is chilied beef broth, fueled up with chili peppers and honed with a couple of dollops of sherry.

No book on fiery foods would be complete without a section on curries, and this one gives them ample space. Cranwell notes, incidentally, that not all curries have the brimstone touch and cites the sweet curries of Thailand, Burma and Indonesia. He leaves out the sweet ones and also omits the "ferociously hot tamil curries" of Ceylon.

One recipe that intrigued me was crab thermidor, a fiery variation of the lobster classic.

- 5 large fresh mushrooms
- 6 tablespoons butter
- 1½ tablespoons flour
- 3 tablespoons dry mustard
- ½ tablespoon salt
- 1 teaspoon fresh ground white pepper
- 1 teaspoon tabasco
- 1½ cups clam juice
- ½ cup dry white wine
- ¼ cup milk
- 3 10-ounce packages frozen Alaskan crabmeat
- 2 tablespoons grated parmesan cheese

Wash mushrooms and cut up with stems. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in skillet and cook mushrooms till brown. Drain, discard any liquid and set aside. While mushrooms cook, mix in bowl the flour, mustard, salt and pepper. Place 3 tablespoons butter in pan and melt, adding contents of bowl to make a paste. Add tabasco, clam juice, wine and milk. Stir contents of pan over low heat to make a thick sauce. When sauce is cooked, add to mushrooms and thawed crab. Stir all together. Use remaining butter to grease 4 gratin pans. Fill with pan mixture. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese and place under hot broiler 5 minutes till top is browned. Serves 4. Good with a chilled moselle.

Carrots, pineapples make a great cake

Nearly everyone has made a salad of carrots, golden canned Hawaiian pineapple and flaked coconut. That same combination goes together, too, in a moist, spicy cake that's ideal for carrying to a picnic or pot luck dinner.

The original carrot cake traces its origin to Germany, where generations of excellent cooks prepared a dark spiced torte filled with carrots, nuts, or raisins. This new "Hawaiian Pineapple Carrot Cake" version is lighter in both texture and color, but every bit as delicious and nutritious as the original.

Its fluffy batter is spiced with cinnamon, nutmeg and ginger. Grated carrots, coconut and crushed pineapple are folded in and the cake is set into the oven for a leisurely baking.

Perfect to serve plain, "Hawaiian Pineapple Carrot Cake" is even more of a treat topped with a lemon-mace icing. Plain or frosted, you'll find dozens of ways to serve it, even as a sweet to replace doughnuts or coffee cake at breakfast.

HAWAIIAN PINEAPPLE CARROT CAKE

- 1 (1 pound 4 ounce) can crushed pineapple
- ¾ cup oil
- 1 1/3 cups sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 3 large eggs
- 2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ¾ teaspoon ginger
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- 2 cups finely shredded carrot (6 medium carrots)
- 1 cup flaked coconut
- Lemon Mace Icing

Drain pineapple well. Reserve ¼ cup fruit for Lemon Mace Icing. Beat oil, sugar and vanilla together well. Beat in eggs, one at time, beating well after each addition. Resift flour with salt, baking powder, soda and spices. Stir into creamed mixture alternately with carrot and coconut. Fold in drained pineapple. Turn into greased and floured nine-inch tube pan. Bake below oven center in moderate oven (350 degrees F) 45 to 50 minutes, until cake tests done. Cool in pan. When cold turn out and frost top with Lemon Mace Icing. Makes one (9-inch) cake.

Lemon Mace Icing: Cream two tablespoons soft butter, 1½ cups sifted powdered sugar, one teaspoon grated lemon peel and ¼ teaspoon mace together. Stir in reserved ¼ cup well drained pineapple.

Consumption of pork hasn't increased much

Gourmet corner

By TOM HOGE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Americans used to consume as much pork as they did beef, mainly because pork was the standby of the farmer. Ham and bacon were a common sight on rural dinner tables and the staple meat was salt pork, kept in a barrel of brine in the farmhouse cellar. So popular was it that a frontier wife in a novel by James Fenimore Cooper said "I hold a family to be in a desperate way when the mother can see the bottom of the pork barrel."

Today, however, the consumption of beef is almost double what it was 60 years ago while the amount of pork eaten has not increased appreciably in six decades This is partly explained by the fact that a far greater proportion of the population now lives in our cities and suburbs while the farm families are dwindling.

At one time owners of livestock looked on pigs as just pigs and gave little thought to improving them Then in the 19th century English farmers began developing different breeds and we began importing them.

Actually, there is no native American pig unless you count the peccary or javelina found in Mexico and parts of Texas. Even those wild razorback hogs that roam the Great Smokies in Tennessee and North Carolina stem, I am told, come from animals introduced by sportsmen for hunting, the way they introduced the pheasant and the fallow deer.

The choicest part of the hog according to most tastes is the ham and Americans still eat plenty of it. We have Danish hams, Polish hams and Westphalian hams from Germany, to name a few imports. And in this country there is a dazzling variety, including Tennessee country ham served with pickled peaches, Texas ham coated with corn meal, Georgia country ham glazed with sugar and champagne sauce and, of course, the Virginia ham, from the Tidewater. The greatest prestige center for ham still is Smithfield, Va., and so many imitations have cropped up that the Virginia General Assembly enacted a statute specifying that these hams had to be smoked and processed in the town of Smithfield.

TOO CRUEL? — With tube in throat, the goose, caged and immobilized by a steel collar, is forced to swallow corn. The "tears" falling from its eyes are really of blood, according to the French paper, Le Sud Ouest.

Animal cruelty creates boycott

Friends of Animals, a New York-based humane organization, is promoting a campaign started by Mrs. Carol Lester of Sausalito, to ban importation of pate-de foie gras.

Mrs. Lester prevailed upon her Congressman, John L. Burton, to introduce Bill H.R. 5676 which would prohibit importation of pate de foie gras "if such pate is composed in whole or part of any duck or goose which has been force-fed by mechanical means."

In the pate industry, cruelty is an old story, Friends of Animals says. Formerly, some farmers nailed a webbed foot to the barn floor and piled corn in front of the captive birds, while others stuffed their birds by hand. But today large companies control the industry use electric feeding devices.

According to an article in 'The People' (England) by Henry Kahn:

"Geese and ducks are forcibly crammed with huge amounts of corn until their livers swell to ten times normal size. The poor birds live in bloated agony for a month. Then they are killed and the pate is made from fatty, swollen livers.

"French manufactures — the biggest producers of pate—have stepped up their output by using machines which feed more geese more efficiently. No less than 80 lbs. of salted, fatty, cooked corn is forced down a goose's throat over a month until its body becomes distended.

"The goose is held between the knees and the neck is stretched. A funnel is inserted into its beak and the quota of corn is pushed down its throat by the machine. After 25 days of this, the goose can hardly move. It is in terrible pain; it can breathe only with difficulty," Kahn claims.

Crab pie: it's good and filling

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

It looks pretty, it tastes good and it's filling. We're talking about a Crab Pie that's a worthwhile choice when you want to serve a meatless lunch or supper. A tossed salad of crisp greens, sliced cucumber and a vinaigrette dressing will taste delicious with it.

CRAB PIE

Cornmeal Pastry, see below
½ cup chopped scallion
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
7½-ounce can or 6-ounce package thawed frozen Alaska king crab
2 hard-cooked eggs sliced
1 cup grated Swiss cheese mixed with 3 tablespoons grated Parmesan
2 raw eggs
1 cup commercial sour cream
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
1 tomato, halved and sliced

Roll Cornmeal Pastry ⅛-inch thick; fit into a 9-inch pie plate, fluting edge; pierce pastry with a fork over entire bottom surface; bake in a preheated 400-degree oven for 8 to 10 minutes; cool. Lightly cook scallion in the butter. Drain crab and slice large pieces; arrange with scallion and egg slices in the pie shell. Sprinkle with the cheese, reserving 2 tablespoons of it. Beat raw eggs, sour cream, milk, salt and pepper until blended; pour into pie shell. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven for 35 minutes. Arrange tomato slices around edge of pie filling; sprinkle them with the reserved cheese. Continue baking pie until filling is set — about 10 minutes more. Makes 6 servings.

CORNMEAL PASTRY

Combine 1 cup flour, ¼ cup yellow corn meal, ¼ teaspoon salt. Cut in ½ cup shortening, sprinkle with 3 to 4 tablespoons ice water, tossing until ball forms.

Blackeye peas made for southern dishes

When Tony Luccio, born and bred in Benezento, a small town in southern Italy, came to live in New Jersey almost a dozen years ago he was surprised to find that the families he visited near his new home never served fresh blackeye peas. Called fagioli all' occhio in Italian, Tony's mother had made various dishes with them and he had grown up relishing them.

It wasn't until much later when he met a neighbor, a good cook from Georgia, that Tony discovered blackeye peas are used in some of the great dishes of our southern states. One day his neighbor treated him to a blackeye pea salad and, as he says, "It tasted just like the one we used to have in Benezento." He was interested to know that the fresh frozen blackeye peas used in the salad are now available all over the U.S.A. and are beginning to be highly esteemed in every part of our country.

If you'd like to try the delightful salad appreciated in both southern Italy and Georgia, here's the recipe. It's great to serve at any time of the year with sliced meat (cold or hot), hamburgers or frankfurters. It's also a fine accompaniment for chilled poached fish steaks or pan-fried whole fish, fillets or steaks. Good, too, with scrambled eggs and bacon or ham for a weekend brunch or Sunday night supper.

BLACKEYE PEA SALAD

2 10-ounce packages frozen blackeye peas
½ cup cider vinegar
½ cup olive or other salad oil
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon ground hot red pepper
½ cup thinly sliced scallion, part of the green tops included
½ cup slivered green pepper

Garnish: Skinned, seeded and coarsely diced tomato and, if desired, lettuce or other salad greens.

Cook the blackeye peas according to package directions; drain and cool. Stir in vinegar; add oil, salt, mustard, sugar and red pepper and mix thoroughly. Add scallion and green pepper and mix lightly. Cover and chill.

At serving time turn the salad into a serving bowl; ring the outside edge with the tomato — it makes a colorful contrast to the blackeye peas and its flavor goes well with them.
